We cheated a little in order to photograph six May graduates with an April blooming tree. The tree is located behind Brauer Hall. The graduates are (background from left to right): Jim Ennis, DDS, Alisa Hearne, DA, Regina Henderson, DH (foreground from left to right): Kathy Boyd, DDS, Mac Collie, DDS, Sharon Walker, DDS. Fortunately, they all received their diplomas! See the feature article about the exciting career opportunities available to them in dentistry. Thanks to the members of the Dental Alumni Association. They help make this magazine and many special activities possible.

DEAN'S COMMENTS

Launching Careers!

On May 12 the School of Dentistry graduated 68 dentists, 25 dental hygienists, 8 dental assistants, and 2 advanced education students. For the students, their families and the faculty, graduation combined ceremony, pride, elation, and intense anticipation about the future. For all our students, graduation day served as the launching of what will likely be long and rewarding careers in dentistry. The excitement and festivities of the occasion were in keeping with the importance of the event.

Dentistry is one of the few professions where the graduates' careers and personal rewards are likely to exceed expectations. Time and again practitioners indicate to me just how good dentistry has been to them since their own graduation. In fact, it is remarkable how significant four years in dental school are in terms of shaping careers, lifestyles and ancillary opportunities as well as professional and civic responsibilities. Compared to other academic and professional programs at a university, surely dentistry most dependably provides' graduates with consistent professional and personal satisfaction.

Recently, a very thoughtful practitioner quietly commented to me that it appeared today's graduates are more ambivalent about or less committed to a dental career than were graduates of earlier generations. In reflecting on this, I think this phenomenon, if it exists at all, may be due to the vastly greater array of career choices faced by young people today. It now may well be more daunting for students to choose career paths. Parents experience some of this complexity and uncertainty as they guide their children to and through college in current times.

We should not be surprised that today's students remain just a bit more anxious about their decision to enter dental school, given the other opportunities forgone. Further, unlike earlier times when most D.D.S. graduates knew they would directly enter solo practice, today's students know that graduation presents them with another set of difficult choices. Associateships, partnerships and additional training are some of the current alternatives to solo practices. In any event, I firmly believe that in the vast majority of cases any such uncertainty rapidly evaporates once a working career in dentistry is launched. Over the last few years, career opportunities in dentistry have multiplied, giving today's graduates a vastly wider and richer spectrum of choices. This will continue in the future. It should be easier than ever, therefore, for dental graduates to find just the right career niche for themselves. I believe the wider range of opportunities strengthens the profession by broadening its base and by assuring continued career satisfaction for new and established practitioners, even as the profession adapts to changing times.

For the faculty and staff at the UNC School of Dentistry, launching young people on rewarding careers in dentistry remains a uniquely stimulating and satisfying activity.

Dentistry's Diversity

EQUALS

Options and Opportunities

These are exciting times for dentistry. The options and opportunities for the prospective student, for the recent graduate, for the established practitioner, and for the dental team member are as multifaceted as one can imagine. The following six vignettes illustrate the diversity among dental professionals and take an up close and personal look at the factors which directed the careers of these individuals. You will see a creative blend of experiences made possible because of the way dentistry has complimented their lives.

Private Practice

From the time he was six years old, Troy B. Sluder, III wanted to become a dentist. In a very unobtrusive way, Troy's father, Troy B. Jr. ('55) had the most significant impact on his son's career choice. As the years went by Troy observed his father's satisfaction and enjoyment in dentistry, the type of work involved, and the lifestyle this career afforded his family. All of this reinforced his early decision. There was never a doubt in his mind that he would also become a dentist.

Troy received his undergraduate degree from Campbell University in Buies Creek in 1981. He then enrolled in the Dental Laboratory Technology program at Durham Technical Community College. With private dental practice as his primary goal, Troy believed that experience as a lab tech would be invaluable to him as a private practitioner. He completed the lab tech program in 1984, entered the UNC School of Dentistry in 1985, and opened his solo practice immediately after graduation in 1989.

The decision to set up a solo practice was the result of carefully exploring all of the other private practice options. His self-confidence, his confidence in his dental education, and a strong desire to practice dentistry the way he believed best for the patient influenced his final decision. After the decision was made to go solo, Troy and his wife, Claudia, set out to find a practice location. They combed the Chapel Hill area until they found the spot they felt would best suit their needs. Troy says, "For a solo practitioner starting from square one, high visibility should be a number one priority. We didn't feel an office building or multi-story complex would give us the exposure we needed." As Troy and Claudia were driving through the newly built Glenwood Square Shopping Center just off Highway 54, they knew immediately they had found the ideal location.

Before he could begin to treat patients, the office had to be constructed. The suite was just a shell, so from start to finish the office was designed and built to Troy's specifications. For Troy and Claudia this has been a team effort from the start. During the construction phase Troy had to be on site every day to ensure that blueprints were followed. Troy worked with Thompson Dental to set up his patient care delivery system. Knowing that initially he would not have a full complement of staff, he designed his treatment rooms to allow him to treat patients efficiently without the aid of a dental assistant. He designed the office for the way he will practice dentistry in the early years and in a way that will let him expand as the practice grows. Patient comfort, staff comfort, and his own comfort were all important considerations.

Claudia decorated the office. She incorporated charm and style into a comfortable, relaxing and homelike environment. The ambience created by the soft lighting, the cozy feeling of the den style furniture, the gentle gurgling of the aquarium against the wall in the reception area, and the soothing color scheme throughout the office combine to create a safe and inviting atmosphere for patients.

Troy is enthusiastic and optimistic about dentistry. Most importantly, he is having fun! In spite of a slumping economy, his practice has been growing at the rate of five to seven patients per week. As his family of patients grows so does his dental expertise. "Everyday I see something new. My dental education provides me with the fundamentals to address each new circumstance I encounter. I have the ability to assess the situation, examine possible approaches, and determine the appropriate course of treatment, consultation or referral. I have this little voice in my head which I've learned to listen to and respect. This voice has been my guide in decision-making and it has never let me down."

Setting up a solo practice is a tremendous physical, psychological and financial endeavor. It is also immensely rewarding. Troy's advice to the new practitioner is to "do your homework before you make any decisions, follow your inner voice, and don't try to recover your initial investment the first year in practice. Let what is best for the patient dictate the treatment you render."

A true-blue Tarheel, Troy is an avid Carolina basketball fan. When he is not following the Heels or playing with his dogs, he is probably talking to a toy company about a new board game he has invented or some small toy figurine he has designed.

Public Health

Rebecca S. King has found a wonderful niche in public health dentistry. She is currently the Deputy Director of the North Carolina Division of Dental Health and has been involved in public health dentistry since she graduated from the UNC School of Dentistry in 1977.

When Rebecca left Monroe, NC to attend UNC as an undergraduate, she had no intentions of going to dental school. She was a math major pondering the burning question of many undergraduates: what will I do with this degree? As luck would have it, at the same time she was struggling with this question, she was in the midst of having some dental work done. During the course of her dental treatment, Drs. Bill Ellis ('58) and Joe Camp ('64) urged Rebecca to take a closer look at dentistry. Their enthusiastic counseling and advice ultimately were responsible for Rebecca's application to dental school.

Following graduation, her first position in dentistry was as a field dentist for the North Carolina Division of Dental Health. As the public health dentist for Chatham, Lee and later, Harnett counties, she was responsible for the preventive and educational services to the schools. She worked primarily with grades K - 6. Rebecca performed screenings and limited clinical services for children, provided dental health education to children, teachers and parents, supervised the school-based fluoride mouthrinse programs, and examined patients in periodic dental epidemiological surveys. She also helped develop programs on how to train teachers to integrate dental health information into their overall educational programs. As her interest in public health dentistry expanded, she entered the Regional Degree Program offered through the School of Public Health at UNC. This part-time program allowed her to continue working while pursuing her degree. She received her MPH in 1988.

In 1990, Rebecca's appointment as Deputy Director of the Division allowed her to combine her dental expertise and administrative talents as she increased her involvement from three counties to statewide. Among her many responsibilities are the fluoride activities and quality improvement for all of the Division's programs. She also works with regional dentist supervisors to provide preventive guidance and support for fourteen dentist and forty-nine dental hygiene field practitioners. Her years in public health have had both rewards and frustrations. As Rebecca describes it, "I work with a variety of different groups, and I find that very stimulating. There is nothing more gratifying than to see the impact of your work on so many people. What frustrates me is the fact that there are still many misconceptions about the role of preventive dentistry in oral health. There are key preventive services, particularly sealants, that are available but are not being utilized to their full capacity. The appropriate use of fluoride and sealants could have a tremendous impact on the remaining decay."

Throughout her tenure with the Division, Rebecca has worked on a number of epidemiological surveys of oral health status in North Carolina. Results of the 1986 North Carolina School Oral Health Survey of 7000 children indicated that dental sealants were grossly under-utilized. Says Rebecca, "One component of my job, and a major thrust of the statewide preventive dentistry program, is to promote and increase sealant utilization."

In combination with her busy professional life, Rebecca is a wife and mother. She and husband, Roy Piscitello, enjoy spending time with their two children, Joe (7 1/2) and Sallie (2 1/2), traveling, scuba diving and participating in the arts.

Specialty Practice

William H. Brown has been a shutterbug for many years. It was his interest in photography that helped launch his career in dentistry. As a Carolina undergraduate, he supplemented his income by taking on various photography jobs. While doing a lot of portrait photography he became sensitized to how self-conscious people are about their teeth. He quickly learned it was important to ask if the clients wanted their teeth to show in the photo.

William had had ample opportunity to explore science and health science career options while working for three years as a Research Assistant in the Department of Pathology. When the time came for him to decide on a career path, his interest in science, his fondness for tinkering with all sorts of gadgets, and his empathy for those individuals who felt embarrassed to smile because of their dental esthetics were weighed in the balance. He decided on dentistry.

He graduated from the UNC School of Dentistry in 1986, practiced general dentistry for one year, and then entered the UNC Orthodontics program as an Edgar Baker Fellow. He encourages anyone going into a specialty program to get some general dentistry experience. William reflects, "This year in practice was invaluable. It enhanced my understanding of general dentistry and general practice, which has helped me to relate better to the perspective of my referring dentists."

Today, as an orthodontist in Kinston, William has blended his hobbies and interests with his professional work.

He made his decision to pursue orthodontics during his early years as a predoctoral dental student at UNC. He felt that orthodontics would afford him the best opportunity to impact facial esthetics, to make whole face changes. "When I entered specialty training I thought it would allow me to narrow my focus and concentrate on a specific area. My experience was just the opposite. I soon discovered that orthodontics broadened the scope of my knowledge base as it related to all aspects of oral health," William says.

Five years out of dental school and two years in specialty practice, William says he "can't think of a better profession. I practice by an axiom that an attending physician once shared with me. That advice was to always maintain your integrity, because once it is lost, it is lost forever."

For William, private practice is very enjoyable. His practice is growing, his patients are diverse, and he loves the autonomy of being his own boss. "I have always been interested in business, so I find managing the business aspect of a practice fascinating," William says.

On Fridays you will find William at the School of Dentistry where he is a part-time Clinical Assistant Professor in the Department of Orthodontics. Half of his time he spends in the clinic with the graduate students and the other half is spent doing orthodontic research.

William uses his photography background everyday taking pre- and post-treatment photographs of his patients. His photography also precipitates conversation in his office, since much of his office is decorated with his work. He hopes one day to have a showing through the Kinston Arts Council. Anyone with a 1985 copy of Impressions can see William's work throughout the yearbook. William also enjoys fishing, boating and, most importantly, spending time with his wife, Kim, and sons, Matthew (5 1/2) and Kennedy (2 1/2).

Science/Research

Just about the time Diane Crumpler Shugars thought she had decided to apply to medical school, her family dentist, Dr. Jesse Lee, invited her to work as a dental assistant in his private practice. It was this experience in the dental office, Dr. Lee's encouragement and guidance, and a long-standing interest in science, that helped Diane choose a career in dentistry.

Today, you will find her in a molecular biology lab at the Lineberger Cancer Research Center conducting experiments which address various aspects of the life cycle of the human immunodeficiency virus (HIV, the AIDS virus). Diane's career path, from dental assistant to molecular biologist, has followed a seemingly natural progression of activities. Her interest in science developed from her days working as a research assistant for Dr. David Miller in the Department of Pathology, as a Carolina undergraduate. She subsequently entered dental school and received her DDS degree from UNC in 1983. Following graduation, Diane completed a two-year hospital-based general practice residency at North Carolina Memorial Hospital. Providing dental care for medically compromised patients was the main thrust of the program and included treating patients with HIV. This experience sparked an interest in the oral manifestations of HIV and an interest in understanding the virus itself.

After practicing for a year in Raleigh, Diane assumed a full-time faculty position in the Department of Operative Dentistry. She left the department in 1987 to pursue her research interest as the recipient of a National Institute of Dental Research Dentist Scientist Award. The Dentist Scientist program provides dentists with funding for five years as they prepare for a career in oral health research. The course of study involves three distinct phases: a clinical component resulting in a Master's degree in a dental specialty, a basic science component, and a supervised research experience leading to a Ph.D.

Diane has just completed the fourth year of the program. She has satisfied the basic science and clinical requirements and was awarded a Masters in Public Health (Dental Public Health) in August of 1988. Her doctoral thesis research, under the direction of Dr. Ronald Swanstrom, focuses on the HIV at the molecular level. She is studying the role of the viral gene nef in pathogenesis and viral sequence requirements for specific HIV RNA packaging. The ultimate goal of these studies is aimed at developing more effective antiviral therapies. "My interest in the field stems from clinical observations while treating patients with HIV," Diane said. "I observed a number of oral manifestations due to the virus during my GPR program. By taking the clinical picture into the laboratory we can begin to understand the genetic components of the virus and the effects of viral replication on disease progression in general and on oral health in particular." When she completes her dissertation in 1992, she will be awarded a Ph.D. in Microbiology and Immunology.

When describing her experience in the Dentist Scientist program Diane says, "The program has provided me with perspective, usable clinical tools, and an opportunity to bring clinical practice and basic science together in a meaningful way." She adds, "There are currently excellent opportunities for women in dental research. I strongly encourage other women in dentistry to pursue research as a rewarding career option." Long-term, she hopes to find herself in a position that will allow her to combine teaching, research and patient care in an academic environment.

In addition to her research, Diane is a Clinical Assistant Professor in the Department of Dental Ecology. She lectures in microbiology and virology to D.D.S. and advanced education students and provides patient care in the Geriatric/Special Care Clinic one-half day a week. When she is not in the lab, Diane and her husband, Dan, enjoy running, swimming, biking and tending to their garden.

Dental Hygiene

As is so often the case, Diana Severt's interest in dentistry was influenced by another dental professional. Diana became intrigued with dentistry and dental hygiene at age twelve during her orthodontic treatment. When she graduated from high school there were three critical items on her agenda. She knew she wanted to go to Carolina, she knew exactly what her major was going to be, and she knew that when she completed her four years she would graduate with a BS in dental hygiene. Diana graduated from the UNC Dental Hygiene Program in 1983.

Autonomy within the structure of the dental office, one-on-one patient care, and control of her own schedule of patients were some of the initial attractions to dental hygiene. After eight years in clinical practice, Diana has demonstrated the integral role a dental hygienist plays in building a family of patients. She has found that dental hygiene treatment, as one component of total patient care, has a tremendously positive impact on oral health.

Diana also had a secondary interest in business and accounting. Her first position in dentistry with Dr. Delma Kinlaw ('81) provided her an opportunity to practice dental hygiene and to do the office bookkeeping. During the early years of her career she worked as the chairside assistant and receptionist as well.

Because of her versatility and flexibility, it didn't take long for this position to develop into that of Office Manager, which is the position Diana holds today. In this position she has been able to combine her interest in business with her dental career. She was instrumental in developing the computer programs for the patient appointment system, the patient records, the office accounting, and the payroll. All of the office transactions are now computerized. She also manages the office personnel - hiring, firing and day-to-day personnel issues. In spite of her many responsibilities, she still maintains a full daily schedule of dental hygiene patients.

As Diana reflects on her years in dental hygiene she says, "I feel fortunate to have worked in the same practice for eight years. During this time I have been called on to utilize all of the skills my dental hygiene education provided. An important aspect of my career development was that I accepted a position that allowed me to learn the gamut of office operations and learn more about dentistry as a whole."

Job satisfaction is an issue many dental team members must confront as they evaluate their career choice. Diana's advice to those struggling with this issue is to look for a practice which shares your practice philosophy - a commitment to patients, to dentistry and to yourself. One needs to look for the right fit and stick with it. There is no question Diana has found the right fit. She says, "I have investigated other career options and, after weighing the pluses and the minuses, dentistry is still the best place for me."

After a long and busy day at the dental office, Diana indulges in her newest hobby, weight lifting. She also finds time to teach aerobics twice a week and to play a game or two of racquetball. Diana summarized her feeling about her career choice by saying "Dental hygiene has provided me with the opportunity to fulfill my personal and professional goals and enjoy a lifestyle which allows me to easily integrate my many interests and hobbies into my leisure hours."

Diana has been active in the Dental Hygiene Alumni Association and was the 1990-91 president. She will continue her involvement this year as past president.

Full Circle

On March 22, 1991 Jacob B. Freedland retired from practice after over fifty years in dentistry. It is not longevity that makes this man so special but his incredible contribution to the profession. His career serves as a model for everyone in dentistry.

Jake was a member of the UNC Class of 1933, received his DDS from Emory University School of Dentistry in 1936, and was licensed in North Carolina in 1938. A year later he married Charlotte, to whom he credits much of his success. Jake entered the military in 1941 and served with General Patton throughout World War II. Returning to Charlotte, NC after the war, he reopened his general practice in February, 1946. Somewhat disillusioned in the early years, Jake explored other options in dentistry. He was offered a faculty position at the University of Michigan, but Charlotte convinced him that Carolina was their home and in Carolina they should stay. Over the years endodontics became the focus of his practice and by 1961 he had limited his practice to this specialty.

Jake is what many would call a mover and shaker in dentistry. Considered a "founding father" of endodontics, Jake's efforts helped endodontics gain ADA recognition as a specialty in 1963. That year he became the eleventh endodontist in the country to receive board certification.

The list of Jake's professional accomplishments is impressive. Jake says the secret of his success is due to "the helping hands and the respect of his friends." When friends and colleagues are asked to describe Jake, four words resound: completely ethical, totally compassionate. Probably the most important aspect of his career is what he has done behind the scenes to promote oral health care in North Carolina, the UNC School of Dentistry, and the dental profession as a whole.

Jake was among the principals involved in the fluoridation movement at both the state and local levels. In 1949, Charlotte became the largest municipality in the country and the first city in the Southeast to receive the benefits of fluoridated water.

The citizens of Mecklenberg County have an exceptional Special Care Dental Center located in the Huntersville-Oaks Hospital. "There is nothing like the Oaks, an intermediate care facility, in this part of the country," says Jake. The four chair dental clinic became a reality when Jake convinced the Charlotte Hospital Authority there was a need for a dental facility at the Oaks. The clinic is designed to serve the needs of "special patient" populations, particularly the medically compromised, handicapped and geriatric patients. Dental and dental hygiene students and oral surgery graduate students from the School gain valuable patient treatment experiences while they provide beneficial services during their rotations at the Oaks. Last year a conference room there was dedicated in Jake's name in recognition of his efforts on behalf of the special care clinic.

Throughout the years, the School has benefited in many ways from Jake's support. In 1964, Jake accepted a part-time faculty appointment in Operative Dentistry and commuted from Charlotte every week. When the Department of Endodontics was created in 1966, his advice was extremely important in the development of the Graduate Endodontic program. Jake was also instrumental in establishing an undergraduate recruiting program for dentistry at Davidson College. Sensing a void in the recruitment system for DDS students, he helped the UNC School of Dentistry gain visibility there. As a result of this program more than twenty-five Davidson graduates have chosen dentistry and come to UNC for their DDS degrees since 1975. Over the years Jake has given his time and talent to the work of the Dental Foundation and has had a significant impact on the School's fund raising endeavors. Friends and colleagues acknowledged his outstanding efforts when they established the Jacob B. Freedland Chair in Endodontics, the first endowed chair specifically for the School of Dentistry.

Over the course of five decades in dentistry Jake has provided leadership to an array of councils and committees for state and national organizations, including the North Carolina Dental Society, the American Dental Association, and the American Board of Endodontics.

Although officially retired from practice, Jake has not retired from dentistry. He still works at the Oaks clinic a day or so a week. He maintains his contacts in organized dentistry and frequently communicates with the Dean's office at the School. Jake and Charlotte have traveled throughout the world as ambassadors for the profession. There is little doubt that Jake will continue working for dentistry for many years to come.

New DRC Director Begins

Dr. Roland R. Arnold is the new Director of the Dental Research Center (DRC) and Assistant Dean for Research at the School. He began his duties in January.

Arnold grew up in Louisiana. In describing himself as a boy, he said, "As long as I can remember, I've been interested in science. I was always taking things apart." Arnold was drafted out of college in 1969. The Army trained him as a cardiology specialist and stationed him in Germany. "I got a year's crash course in all aspects of medical technology at a thousand bed hospital," he observed. Arnold returned home after the Army and earned undergraduate (1972) and doctoral degrees in Microbiology and Immunology (1975) from Louisiana State University.

Graduate courses introduced him to caries immunology. Through a post-doctoral research grant at the University of Alabama at Birmingham, he helped investigate antibodies found in saliva. Arnold reported, "We found that these antibodies were part of a common mucosal immune system that could be stimulated by oral immunization." He continued his work at UAB as an assistant professor in the Department of Microbiology. Arnold's first academic appointment in dentistry occurred at the School of Dentistry, University of Louisville, in 1979, where he taught oral biology and conducted research. He also participated in the creation of a dental research center.

In 1983, Arnold moved to Emory University where he became Professor and Chairman of Oral Biology in the School of Dentistry, Director of the Dental Research Center, and Associate Dean for Research, School of Postgraduate Dentistry. He led a major expansion of dental research, including the renovation of a building for research.

Arnold also expanded his own research at Emory to the area of host bacteria relations in periodontal disease. As an example of his research interest, he asked, "We know that the neutrophil is a very important cell in protection against periodontal disease, but what are the mechanisms of its interaction with the harmful bacteria?" Arnold's research topics include: "Bactericidal Activity of Lactoferrin on Oral Flora," "Neutrophil Function in Periodontal Disease," "Functional Subsets of Secretory Antibodies," and the "Nature of Inhibitors of HIV in Human Secretory Fluids." He has been the principal or co-principal investigator of over 28 grants and contracts, mostly funded by the National Institutes of Health, Washington, DC.

Another of Arnold's major interests is the training of academicians-researchers. He has been a preceptor of graduate students, a member of graduate student committees, and worked with graduate, professional and postdoctoral students on research. "It's important to nurture young researchers," Arnold stated, "and dentistry needs more ways to support them, such as the post PhD scientist programs which have worked well in medicine."

"I am very excited about being here," Arnold said. He continued, "As a major research university, UNC has a responsibility for the advancement of knowledge. The DRC plays an important role here." Arnold has reviewed the Center's activities and resources and found that it has many strong programs. Some examples include research in the areas of calcification, dental materials, immunology, and craniofacial anomalies.

His concerns for the DRC relate primarily to three areas: funding - "the competition for research grants is intense," renovations - "we've got to have more room," and future researchers - "several of our researchers, who are all still very productive, are approaching retirement age." For his overall goal, Arnold said, "I want to maintain the variety of our research and bring our efforts closer together, so that results of the basic, clinical, population-based, and applied research get to the practitioner and patient quicker."

Terry Named Lorenz Professor

was named honorary Lorenz Professor in Oral and Maxillofacial Surgery at the University of North Carolina in February, 1991 by Dean John Stamm. The professorship was created through the bequest intention of Mr. Walter Lorenz, who is founder and president of The Walter Lorenz Surgical Instruments, Inc. of Jacksonville, FL.

"I consider this a great honor," Dr. Terry said. "It could have been bestowed upon any of our present Oral and Maxillofacial Surgery faculty. It means a lot to me because the honor is associated with a very good friend."

Terry's interest in surgery started in dental school and his training began with a surgery internship in the Navy. A Navy career gave him a wide variety of peace time and war time surgical experiences. Terry currently operates primarily on patients referred to the department because of their complex needs. Patients come from throughout North Carolina and the entire eastern seaboard to obtain the specialized care available at the School. "It's the almost daily patient care challenges we have, as well as the work with graduate and undergraduate students, that I find most enjoyable about being here," he stated.

Developing ways to improve surgical instruments is another of Terry's enjoyments. "A consummate tinkerer," "loves his gadgets" are observations about him by his department chair, Dr. Ron Baker. Over the years Terry has designed a number of instruments to make surgical procedures easier and to provide better service to the patient. Included are instruments for soft tissue surgery as well as hydroxylapatite instruments.

Born in Eldorado, Arkansas, Terry went to the University of Tennessee for his undergraduate (1951) and D.D.S. degrees (1954). A twenty-year career in the Navy followed, with duty assignments in the Philippines, Viet Nam and Long Beach, CA. Terry received the Navy Commendation Medal, the Navy Unit Commendation, and the Meritorious Service Medal. When he retired in 1974, he was Chairman and Oral Surgeon, Department of Dentistry, National Naval Medical Center, Bethesda, MD.

Terry joined the School in 1974 as Professor and Director of Graduate Training in the Department of Oral and Maxillofacial Surgery. He teaches in the undergraduate clinic, gives surgery lectures, and works with advanced education students.

Terry is the author or co-author of 60 publications and abstracts. He holds staff appointments with three NC hospitals and holds academic and/or consultant positions with Bowman Gray, the Surgeon General of the US Navy, the Northern Pennsylvania Transplant Bank, and the Walter Lorenz Surgical Instruments, Inc. He has given ten years of leadership to the American Board Oral and Maxillofacial Surgery, serving as a board member, officer and President (1985-86) and is a Diplomate of the Board. Terry has been honored by several organizations and universities for his contributions to the field of oral and maxillofacial surgery.

Introducing a fiscal program that helps you get paid more than lip service.

Slow Medicaid and insurance payments can be the kiss of death to any practice. But the Premier Dental Management System can help. In addition to storing information for up to 2,000 insurance plans, our electronic claims transfer program expedites processing by eliminating delays by mail. And because claims information is stored on a special list, you can get aging and delinquent reports immediately. Our special software system permits rearranging of file data by any criteria, meaning you could ask for and receive at any given time a complete list of patients and insurance companies who owe money to the practice, tracking literally every dollar of produced income.

So find out how Premier Dental Systems can make your practice more perfect. Call us for more information.

SCHOOL NEWS

Big Crowd at Dental Seminar Day

Almost 400 dentists, dental team members, faculty, and students attended the December 7, 1990 Dental Seminar Day. The 36th annual event focused on "dental implants." The guest speaker at Memorial Hall was Dr. Kenneth A. Turner of Emory University. He discussed "Indications and Considerations for Dental Implants in Restorative Dentistry" and "Treatment Alternatives for the Partially Edentulous Patient."

The Chairman of the UNC Board of Trustees, Mr. Earl N. Phillips, Jr., spoke at the Dental Foundation Luncheon at the Morehead Banquet Hall.

Afternoon small group sessions in Brauer Hall featured faculty members Drs. Ron Baker, John Moriarty, Rick Jordan, and Ed Kanoy discussing surgical, periodontal and fixed and removable prosthodontics treatment considerations for dental implants.

Look for the 37th Annual Dental Seminar Day at the same places and times but on a different date: Friday, November 22, 1991. "Lasers in Dentistry" will be the main topic.

1991 Spurgeon Awards

Students, staff and faculty received a total of 47 awards at the April 2 Spurgeon Awards Banquet held at the Omni Europa Hotel. Keith Mann, President of the Spurgeon Dental Society, served as Master of Ceremonies. The event was supported, in part, by the Dental Alumni Association.

Stan Hardesty received the Zane Eagle Memorial Award, and Randy Macon received the Alpha Omega Scholarship Award. The Dwight Clark Memorial Awards were given to Dorothy Corbett (Dental Assisting), Kristi Weeks (Dental Hygiene), and Trumilla Futch (fourth year D.D.S.)

The Robert E. Tormey, Jr. Memorial Scholarship Award, presented by representatives of the Class of 1990, was given for the first time. It was received by Scott Earp as "the senior dental student who best exemplifies the traits of sociability, humor, loyalty, and caring for others which made Bob Tormey's life so special."

The Richard F. Hunt Award for undergraduate teaching was presented to Dr. James C. Eagle, Jr. ('66).

Eagle Receives Hunt Award

Dr. James C. Eagle, Jr., Clinical Associate Professor, Dental Ecology, received the prestigious Richard F. Hunt Award for Excellence in Undergraduate Teaching. The presentation was made at the Spurgeon Dental Society Banquet in April.

Dr. Henry Fields, Assistant Dean for Academic Affairs, presented the award. He congratulated Dr. Eagle on his high standards for himself and his students, for his concern for students, and for his effective teaching during the past year.

The Hunt Award was established through the Dental Foundation of North Carolina by the Loblolly Dental Study Club in 1969 as a memorial to Dr. Hunt, a native of Rocky Mount and a member of the club. Each year the faculty recipient is selected by a committee of dental students and administrators based on names recommended by students from the four D.D.S. classes.

A graduate of the Class of 1966, Dr. Eagle practiced dentistry in Spencer for 23 years and taught part-time at the School. He joined the School full-time in July, 1989. Active in the Dental Alumni Association, he served as President in 1989-90.

Dental Research In Review

How do you find out about the wide variety of dental research going on at the School? One way is to attend the annual Dental Research In Review Day held in Brauer Hall. The event features a series of brief (15 minute) illustrated oral presentations, twenty or more of them in four concurrent sessions, and a large poster session lasting 1 1/2 hours. Here the researchers are present to respond to questions.

April 3 was this year's date, and the event attracted 38 faculty and student presenters. Their research covered such areas as oral and craniofacial biology, dental materials, cariology, behavioral sciences, oral surgery, neuroscience, pulp biology, pharmacology/therapeutics/toxicology, prosthodontics, microbiology/immunology, and mineralized tissue.

Presenters and attendees came together for a pizza lunch in the third floor lab. The day concluded with an afternoon symposium at the Carolina Inn on "Recent Advances in Periodontal Diagnosis and Treatment" by Ray Williams, D.M.D., Associate Professor and Chairman, Department of Periodontics, Harvard School of Dental Medicine. The day was co-sponsored by the American Association for Dental Research - North Carolina Section, Dr. Tom Lundeen, Chair, and the Continuing Education Office at the School.

Students Honored

The 1991 edition of Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges will include twenty students from the School. They were chosen based on academic achievement, service to the community, leadership in extracurricular activities, and potential for continued success.

The students were: Sherrie R. Barlowe, Kathleen S. Boyd, Brian H. Camp, Thomas S. Clifton, William M. Cohen, Floyd M. Collie, Elizabeth H. Cordes, Regina L. Henderson, Valerie M. Holmes, Vicki M. Houck, Robert M. Loftin, Charles R. Macon, John W. McNeill, Ronald H. Nason, Daniel K. Price, Eric F. Strother, Barbara J. Stubbs, Priscilla S. Walker, Bert B. Warren, Jr., and Kristi L. Weeks.

An Apology

The names of twenty-one contributors were accidentally omitted from the 1989-90 Honor Roll, printed in the Fall, 1990 North Carolina Dental Review. They had each given between $100 and $249 last year and were members of the Century Club. We thank them for their support. We also apologize for not including their names before.

'58 Award Goes to Haywood

Dr. Van B. Haywood, Associate Professor of Prosthodontics, received the Class of 1958 Clinical Research Award this year. It was presented to him at the Research In Review Day Symposium on April 3 by Dr. Roland Arnold, Director of the Dental Research Center and Assistant Dean for Research.

Dr. Haywood's article, "Nightguard vital bleaching: effects on enamel surface texture and diffusion," was published in the November 10, 1990 issue of Quintessence International. His research with bleaching continues to attract national media coverage.

The Class of 1958 annual award recognizes faculty whose research, identified by a published article, has "the greatest potential for direct contributions to the practice of dentistry and dental health generally." The following faculty are previous recipients of the award: Drs. Ted Oldenburg, Walter McFall, Jr., Leland Webb, Harald Heymann, and David Felton.

Perspectives in Dentistry

On February 22-23 twenty alumni, spouses, and friends became reacquainted with the School during an exciting new program called "Perspectives in Dentistry." The program gave guests, faculty, and students a chance to dialogue on issues effecting dental education and the profession. "We are working hard to open the lines of communication by bringing people back to the School. Based on the positive response to this program we will plan more 'Perspectives' in the future," says Wendy McCorkle, Director of Development.

Spanglers Visit

University of North Carolina President C.D. Spangler and his wife, Meredith, were special guests of the School on April 8. The Spanglers were hosted by Dr. Jake and Charlotte Freedland and by Dean Stamm. They toured the clinical facilities and visited a number of the labs in the Dental Research Center. Dr. Stamm was pleased to have the opportunity to meet with the Spanglers and help broaden their understanding of the important missions of the School.

Abernethy Lectureship in Ethics

In December, 1990 Dr. G. Shuford Abernethy of Hickory established a $50,000 gift annuity. The funds will eventually come to the Dental Foundation to establish the G. Shuford Abernethy Lectureship in Ethics Endowment Fund. As Dr. Abernethy said, "I want the School to use the endowment income to fund lectures in ethics so that dental students may acquire a sense of obligation to their patients, families, place of worship, profession, and community."

"The opportunity to present guest lecturers in ethics for our dental students will expand our focus on ethics," according to Dr. David Brunson, Clinical Associate Professor and Director, Comprehensive Care at the School. "Dr. Abernethy's eventual gift will help the School do an even better job of preparing our students for their futures as dental professionals."

A native of Hickory, Dr. Abernethy attended UNC and received his DDS from Atlanta Southern (now Emory University) in 1936. He returned to Hickory, married his high school sweetheart, Connie, and began his practice of dentistry. Throughout the years he served as president of the State Board of Dental Examiners, the Dental Foundation, and the UNC Catawba County Alumni Association. He received an Outstanding Service Award from the Catawba County Dental Society and the Distinguished Service Award from the UNC Dental Alumni Association. Now retired, Dr. Abernethy continues to be active on the State Board of Health and in Rotary. He is a long time friend of the School of Dentistry and member of the UNC Chancellors Club.

Brauer Gift Establishes Fund

The Dora Lee and John Brauer Fund for Research in Dentistry was established in November 1990 through the estate of Dora Lee Brauer, widow of the first dean of the UNC School of Dentistry. As stated in her will, the "fund is to be established at the discretion of the Dean for pilot research projects or testing new concepts by members of the faculty or under its discretion." Mrs. Brauer's will also established a charitable remainder unitrust in the names of her son and daughter-in-law, which will provide further support to the School in the future.

Many alumni and friends of the School remember the Brauers and appreciate their accomplishments. For those who didn't know them personally, a perusal of the School's history, From Quonset Hut to Number One and Beyond, provides a host of examples.

One describes Dean Brauer's ambitious start. After arriving in March, 1950, "Brauer established a nine month time table in which to interview and select the first members of the faculty, design a curriculum, interview and accept students for admission to the first class, arrange temporary quarters for teaching the first two years of the curriculum and to plan the first permanent building. The history of dental education has not recorded a comparable achievement on a similar timetable." (p.59).

In a letter to their son, Dr. James S. Brauer (DDS '62, Ortho '64), Dean John Stamm wrote, "The School continues to benefit from your father's foresight. Our world class standing as a dental school can be traced directly to Dr. John C. Brauer and his vision for dental education. Now, as before, your father and mother have demonstrated their dedication to the School's future. We are very grateful." The Dean said that the bequest will be invested and the interest will then be used as seed money to encourage research. The fund is now valued at over $71,000.

Givers and Giving Increase

Gifts from alumni, other individuals, and corporations are up substantially for the current fiscal year. At the end of April, the School of Dentistry had 20% more gifts than last year at this time. In dollars, that amounts to $450,000 versus $200,000, about a 225% increase. The number of alumni contributors has increased 13% to over 700.

Although the dollar amounts are significant, the most important fact is that the money is helping the School in critical ways. A large portion of the gifts has been designated to go into permanent endowment funds which will support students and faculty forever. Other funds make a tremendous difference to specific departments and to Dean John Stamm in terms of facility improvement, recruitment, participation in academic conferences, invitations to guest lecturers, encouragement of research, and a variety of other uses.

Thank you for your support of the School of Dentistry.

Lorenz Oral Surgery Professorship

In January, 1991 Dean John Stamm announced a major estate commitment by Mr. and Mrs. Walter Lorenz for a $1 million endowed professorship in the Department of Oral and Maxillofacial Surgery. Mr. Lorenz is founder and president of Walter Lorenz Surgical Instruments Inc., of Jacksonville, FL. The company, a leader in its field, manufactures and distributes a wide variety of high quality surgical instruments.

Mr. Lorenz and his wife were honored at a February 13 ceremony, with remarks by Dr. Garland Hershey, Vice Chancellor for Health Affairs, Dean John Stamm, and Dr. Ron Baker, Chair of the Department of Oral and Maxillofacial Surgery. Dr. Baker stated, "I would especially like to express the department's and the institution's appreciation to B.J. and Walter Lorenz for establishment of this chair in Oral and Maxillofacial Surgery. Through your generosity you have left an enviable legacy that may be expected to impact on the teaching and practice of oral and maxillofacial surgery for generations to come."

Mr. Lorenz's response was filled with good humor as well as serious comments about the reasons he and his wife decided to support oral surgery at the UNC School of Dentistry. He appreciated the fact that the success of his company allowed him to consider such a gift. He described his long and fruitful relationship of almost twenty years with Dr. Bill Terry, Professor of Oral and Maxillofacial Surgery at the School, admiring Bill's constant search for innovations and new concepts in managing surgical problems. Mr. Lorenz also noted his more recent connections with Drs. Jordan, Tucker and Zuniga and thanked Drs. Proffit and White for their new oral surgery textbook. He smiled as he proposed keeping several spaces open in his next catalogue for new suggestions from the UNC faculty.

In a further light-hearted explanation for his gift, Mr. Lorenz, who, last fall, had not known about Dean Stamm's Canadian background, said, "My wife and I had been talking about making a gift to the School when Dean Stamm visited us in Florida. As an ice hockey fan, one who sets his alarm for the middle of the night to turn on the radio for the final scores, I was amazed to learn that Dean Stamm not only enjoyed ice hockey but knew about Phil Esposito and other players as well! That decided it."

Sitting in the official UNC chair presented to him at the ceremony, Mr. Lorenz is pictured with his wife, B.J., and Erika and Bill Terry.

Why I Give...

Everyone has to have an organization, a cause, an institution, or an individual to which or whom they feel particularly attached. Such a personal attachment often causes us to take time to reflect and try to figure out just what it is about this sense of unity that makes us feel the way we do. Often during these introspective moments, words and ideas such as loyalty, devotion, "true blue", obligation, course of life, accomplishment, and giving seem to surface. As an alumnus and a member of the faculty of the School of Dentistry, it doesn't take me very long to realize what the school has given to me over a lengthy period of time:

I was accepted; I was taught well; I was expected to learn and grow, and as a result the profession has been fun and most rewarding.

All of this I have received at a very reasonable cost and at the expense of an extended list of dedicated individuals.

It is certainly no small wonder why I think it is only fitting and "proper" (as M.C. Hammer would say) to find giving to the school a "painless" procedure. How do I justify my giving? I think it may help maintain excellence. I think it may even help someone in the same manner it helped me. And last but not least it's our (my) school.

Gosh! I'm so excited now, I think I'll go get the checkbook. Visit when you can.

Spring Weekend

Alumni Weekend 1991 was a grand assembly of alumni, family and friends of the School. The first activity was the spring meeting of the Dental Foundation Board of Directors on Friday morning, April 5. A standing room only crowd attended the Seventh Annual Shankle Lecture at the Carolina Inn in the afternoon, the Alumni Reception and Class Reunion dinner dance gala at the Carolina Inn. Three hundred and fifty guests enjoyed wonderful hors d'oeuvres, their favorite beverage, and fantastic conversation. It is estimated that the noise level reached 100 decibels at one point during the reception. Following the reception the reunion classes adjourned to the UNC Ballroom for dinner. Later, class photographs were taken (see Alumni Association Members roster) and everyone danced to the lively sounds of the Andy Swindell Party Band.

Saturday, April 6, it was back to business, with the annual meeting of the Dental Alumni Association. A positive budget report, election of were presented, "Digital Radiography" by Dr. DonTyndall and "Mechanisms of Chronic Oral Facial Pain" by Dr. John Zuniga.

Saturday afternoon, the Class of 1994 hosted the annual School picnic at Storybook Farm. The weather was perfect for the students and their families, parents, alumni, faculty, and friends. Everyone enjoyed a barbecue lunch, games, and the dunking booth and the pie toss. Congratulations to the Class of '94. It was a great picnic.

kickoff event for this special weekend. Two hundred and twenty-five participants heard Dr. N. S. Bashkar speak on oral pathology of clinical significance. A tour of the newly renovated Ackland Art Museum was also conducted Friday afternoon for those whose interests were more cultural than clinical.

Friday's grand finale was the All officers, and a question and answer panel of School administrators were parts of the brief morning meeting. Alumni queried the dean, the assistant deans, and the director of admissions on a host of issues related to the School, the students, and the University. The Roy B. Harrell Symposium was held immediately following the alumni meeting. Two excellent topics

Dental Alumni Leaders

Congratulations to Dr. D. Brock Wellons ('71) President, Dr. John R. Dunn ('64) Vice President, Dr. Dicky E. Parrish ('76) Secretary-Treasurer, and Dr. F. Webb McCracken ('63) Immediate Past-President. They will serve as officers of the UNC Dental Alumni Association for 1991-92.

Welcome to the following new Directors: Drs. John L. Cloninger ('66), Lafayette Judkins ('80), Larry K. Neal, Jr. ('69), Gene M. Shuford ('67), Renda L. Welch, ('79), and Henry N. Wright ('68). Thank you for your leadership to those who completed their terms on the Alumni Board: Drs. Jeffrey D. Billings ('83),

John W. Bradshaw ('64), Catherine B. Evans ('82), A. Winfield Knight, Jr. ('73), David S. Patterson ('82), and William G. Quarles ('63).

The number of annual members continues to increase and Life Membership expanded last year. Currently, the Alumni Association membership, including all categories, totals 999. "Over the last three years we have rewritten our Constitution and ByLaws, balanced our budget, and tried new program ideas," Dr. Webb McCracken, outgoing president commented. He continued, "Many alumni helped us achieve these goals. The Dental Alumni Association is in good shape to continue serving our members and members-to-be in the years to come."

Thanks to Reunion Organizers

This year's class reunion organizers did a great job of contacting their classmates and encouraging them to return. Because of their hard work, the April 5 class reunions were very well attended and enjoyed by all. Thanks to John Dixon ('56), Frank Pattishall ('61), Gene Howden ('66), John Hamrick ('71), Rocky Underwood ('76), Bonnie Williams ('81), and William Brown ('86).

And thanks to Ms. Sharon Grayden, Director of Alumni and Special Events, for a great planning and organizing job!

Alumni Honor Bawden and McKaig

Dr. James W. Bawden received the UNC Dental Alumni Association's John C. Brauer Award for distinguished service to the School of Dentistry.

Dr. Bawden, Alumni Distinguished

Professor of Pediatric Dentistry, joined the faculty in 1961. He was Dean of the School from 1966-1974. Dr. Bawden has served as Director and Acting Director of the Dental Research Center and as Assistant Dean for Research. He continues his clinical teaching in pediatric dentistry. His outstanding research career also continues with studies on enamel and fluorides.

Dr. Bettie R. McKaig (DH'71, DDS '78) was honored with the Alumni Association's Distinguished Service Award for outstanding service to the profession of dentistry.

Dr. McKaig has served as President of the Raleigh-Wake County Dental Society and the NC Academy of General Dentistry and received the Fourth District Outstanding Service Award. She has also served on the Dental Foundation Board of Directors. She is the current president of the North Carolina State Board of Dental Examiners. Dr. McKaig was recently named to the national Pew Health Professions Commission Advisory Panel for Dentistry. She lives and practices in Raleigh.

The awards were presented at the School's All-Alumni reception at the Carolina Inn on April 5, 1991. The Brauer Award recognizes life-long service rather than one particular activity or specific contribution. Previous recipients are Drs. Clifford Sturdevant, James Harrell, Sr., and Baxter Sapp. Prior recipients of the Distinguished Service Award are Drs. Dudley Chandler, Shuford Abernethy, Keith Bentley, Sandy Marks, and Jim Elliott.

Reunions, April 3, 1992

Members of the Classes of 1957, 1962, 1967, 1972, 1977, 1982, and 1987, be sure you have the date on your calendar: Friday night, April 3, 1992. It's your class reunion! Make plans to return and enjoy. Talk it up with your classmates. Make yours a great class reunion.

Have you moved your office or residence?

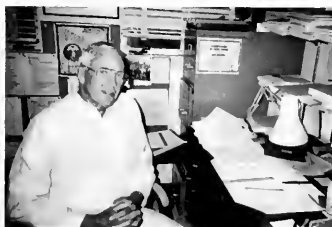

Don't forget to send or call in your name and address changes to the:

New Dental Seminar Day Date

The 1992 Dental Seminar Day has been set for Friday, November 22. That is the Friday before the Duke Carolina football game and a week before Thanksgiving weekend.

This year's CE program features "Lasers in Dentistry." A special component of the day will be an actual laser demonstration. You won't want to miss this outstanding continuing education opportunity. Just remember, this year's date is about two weeks earlier than usual.

FACULTY UPDATES

Ben D. Barker, Professor, Dental Ecology, was elected to the Board of Trustees at Davidson College.

James W. Bawden, Alumni Distinguished Professor, Department of Pediatric Dentistry, organized and attended an international workshop on "Changing Patterns in Systemic Fluoride Intake" at the University of North Carolina, April 23-25. The meeting set new guidelines for the use of fluoride supplements, water fluoridation and topical fluoride agents. Approximately fifty experts from ten countries participated.

Stephen C. Bayne, Associate Professor in Operative Dentistry, has been invited to join the prestigious Academy of Restorative Dentistry. In April, he was elected to Omicron Kappa Upsilon, the National Dental Honor Society. Both memberships are significant in that Bayne joins a select group of non-dentists who have become part of these special organizations. He recently completed a two-year term as President of Academy of Dental Materials. For the academic year 1991-92 he will serve as Chair of the Faculty for the School.

Miles A. Crenshaw, Professor of Pediatric Dentistry, Adjunct Professor of Geology and Professor of Marine Sciences, gave a paper at the symposium Biomaterialization/90, in October, 1990 at Odawara, Japan. He also visited and gave lectures at the Hokkaido University, Nippon Dental University, Tsuromi University, and Tokyo Medical and Dental University dental schools. In November, 1990 Dr. Crenshaw gave the opening paper at a symposium in Boston at the annual meeting of the Materials Research Society.

Susan J. Daniel, Assistant Professor, D.A.T.E., gave a presentation at the AADS Meeting in New Orleans on "Teaching and Evaluation Methodology in Interpersonal Communication Skills as Reported by US Dental Hygiene Programs." She also attended a workshop there sponsored by the D.A.T.E. Alumni Association.

Diane C. Dilley, Associate Professor, Pediatric Dentistry, was elected to the Board of Directors of the Dental Foundation from the 1990-1993.

James C. Eagle, Jr., Clinical Associate Professor, Comprehensive Care, received the Richard F. Hunt Memorial Award for Excellence in Undergraduate Teaching at the Spurgeon Banquet and was asked to hood the Class of 1991.

H. Garland Hershey, Vice Chancellor for Health Affairs and Professor of Orthodontics has been selected for the dentistry advisory panel of the Pew Health Professions Commission. The panel will help the Commission translate its health professional education reform agenda into more specific information for dissemination to professionals and health professional schools.

Harald O. Heymann, Chair, Department of Operative Dentistry, was appointed to the Executive Committee of the AADS Section on Operative Dentistry and to the Editorial Executive Board, representing North America, of the Journal of Dentistry. In 1990 he was appointed to the FDI Speaker Bureau. He was the featured speaker at the Denver Mid-Winter Meeting in January and at the American Academy of Pediatric Dentistry in San Antonio in May.

Ioanna Iatridi, Clinical Assistant Professor, Pediatric Dentistry, was named the winner of the first Ralph McDonald Research Award. The award was presented to Iatridi in May at the Annual Session of the American Academy of Pediatric Dentistry. The new research award recognizes the outstanding pediatric graduate student research submission and honors Dr. Ralph McDonald, Editor Emeritus of Pediatric Dentistry. Iatridi's research paper was entitled "Amelogenin Hydrolysis in Isolated Enamel."

Michae Ignelzi, Resident and Dentist-Scientist Fellow, Pediatric Dentistry, was a finalist in the postdoctoral category for the prestigious Edward Hatton Award Competition sponsored by the International Association for Dental Research. His presentation, entitled "pp60 c-src Levels Increase During Peripheral Nerve Regeneration," was presented to the IADR in Acapulco.

Mark J. Kutcher, Chair and Associate Professor, Diagnostic Sciences, was elected President of the Organization of Teachers of Oral Diagnosis at their annual meeting in New Orleans in March. The organization represents faculty from all dental schools who are involved in teaching oral diagnosis, medicine and treatment planning.

John B. Ludlow, Assistant Professor, Diagnostic Sciences, was voted Chair-elect of the Oral and Maxillofacial Radiology Section of the American Association of Dental Schools at their annual meeting in New Orleans in March. Sandra Madison, Associate Professor and Chair, Department of Endodontics, is serving as President of the Research and Education Foundation of the American Association of Endodontists. She was elected as the first woman Director of the American Board of Endodontics at the annual meeting of the AAE in Washington, DC in April. Sally M. Mauriello, Associate Professor, Dental Hygiene, presented a seminar on "Nutrition and Computer Software Programs" at the UNC Health Sciences Library and coordinated and presented a Dental Health Fair at the NC Special Care Center in Wilson for nurses, nurses aides and staff. She was elected secretary/treasurer of Sigma Phi Alpha-Xi Chapter in February. She presented a poster at the 1991 IADR meeting entitled "Molecular States of Lysozyme in Human Saliva" and presented a workshop on "Teaching Dental Geriatrics for Hygiene Students" in April.

Kenneth N. May, Jr., Director of Admissions and Student Affairs, received a Fellowship in the American College of Dentists in October, 1990 in Boston. He was presented the Faculty Advisor Award for 1991 by the Alumni Association of Student Clinicians and the American Dental Association in March in New Orleans. Robert Mayo, Research Assistant Professor, joined the Department of Dental Ecology in October, 1990 and is working in the Craniofacial Center at the School. A 1990 graduate of Memphis State University, Mayo received his Ph.D. in Speech-Language Pathology and Speech Science. He is a member of the Craniofacial team providing direct clinical services, primarily patient evaluations. Working with Dr. Don Warren in the Velopharyngeal Dynamics Lab, his research is looking at upper airway resistance characteristics in cleft palate and normal populations. He is also testing the speech regulatory system hypothesis.

Steven Offenbacher, Associate Professor, Department of Periodontics and Dental Research, joined the faculty in January, 1991. He moved his research lab from Emory University to UNC to continue to work with Dr. Roland Arnold, Assistant Dean for Research. Offenbacher's background is in biochemistry and pharmacology. He is studying the biochemistry of inflammation and how to modulate that response with pharmacological intervention. His main area of interest is periodontal disease and host bacterial interaction. He receives funding from drug companies, the NIH, and the National Institute of Child Health and Maternal Development. Currently Offenbacher and Arnold are looking at the relationship of inflammation and infection in abnormal pregnancy outcomes. They are trying to determine if there is a link between gum infection and low birth weight.

Michael W. Roberts, Associate Professor, Graduate Program Director, Pediatric Dentistry, was presented the Chief Dental Officer's Exemplary Service Award by the Assistant Surgeon General in recognition of service to the US Public Health Service in May in Rockville, Maryland.

David M. Simpson, Chair, Department of Periodontics, is participating in a study at the School designed to evaluate the effects of placing tetracycline-impregnated fibers into periodontal pockets. This slow-release device for local antibiotic delivery is expected to receive FDA approval for marketing to dentists by 1992, pending successful outcome of current studies around the country.

Ronald P. Strauss, Professor, Dental Ecology, was elected to a three-year term on the Cleft Palate Foundation Board of Directors at its recent meeting. The Foundation educates the public regarding facial birth defects and encourages research.

Donald A. Tyndall, Associate Professor, Diagnostic Sciences, has been appointed Chair of Radiation Health Committee of the Academy of Oral and Maxillofacial Radiology and re-appointed to the NC Radiation Protection Commission. In September, 1990 he presented a paper at the American Academy of Oral and Maxillofacial Radiology in Boston entitled "The Effects of Magnetic Resonance Imaging and X-irradiation on Exe development in the C57B1/6J Mouse."

Donald W. Warren, Kenan Professor and Director, UNC Craniofacial Center, will receive an honorary doctorate at the Kuopio University, Finland in June.

Raymond P. White, Jr., Professor, Oral and Maxillofacial Surgery, was named to a new advisory panel of experts in dentistry by the United States Pharmacopeial Convention, Inc. (USP) to work in its drug information development programs. The USP sets the legally enforceable standards for drugs in the U.S. White will also chair the Steering Committee for the Adult Oral Health Initiative, a nationwide education program to inform adults about the importance of oral health. The program is sponsored by the National Institute of Dental Research and the American Fund for Dental Health. Committee members include Dr. Everett Koop, former U.S. Surgeon General, Dr. Julius Richmond, Harvard University former HEW Secretary; and Preston Littleton, AADS executive director, as well as leaders in medicine, public health, industry, education, and public-interest groups. J. Timothy Wright, Associate Professor, Pediatric Dentistry, is on sabbatical leave at Leeds University in the United Kingdom. He is studying and collaborating with Dr. Colin Robinson, an internationally renowned enamel protein chemist. Wright will begin his work at the School in August.

Retirement

Henry Von Murray, Jr., Professor of Prosthodontics, retired April 30, 1991. He received his D.D.S. degree from the School in 1957 and joined the faculty as a part-time instructor in the Department of Fixed Prosthodontics in 1959. Dr. Murray was named Assistant Professor in 1962, Professor in 1968, and served as Chair of the Department from 1975-1980.

Dr. Murray served on numerous School, UNC, state and national professional committees, including the Dental Foundation Board. He also gave presentations at the local, state, national, and international levels, co-authored "Fixed Restorative Techniques," and authored teaching materials. For the last several years Dr. Murray taught Occlusion courses and served as Director of Undergraduate Clinical Fixed Prosthodontics.

Honors received during his career include Phi Beta Kappa, OKU, five Senior Class Appreciation Awards over a twelve-year period, the Richard Hunt Award for Excellence in Teaching (1971), the Appreciation Award, UNC Prosthodontic Alumni Association in 1989, and the 1991 NCDS Meritorious Achievement Award.

Dr. Murray plans to move to Goldsboro and pursue his hobby of restoring antique cars.

In Memory

Gerald L. Mechanic, Professor of Periodontics/Biochemistry and Nutrition, died January 5, 1991. He came to the Dental Research Center in 1969 and became an internationally recognized expert in collagen biochemistry. His most noteworthy work focused on the enamel protein, Enamelin, and the cross-linking structure of various collagen types. As Dean John Stamm wrote in a note to faculty, "Gerry was a distinguished faculty member and a good friend. We will miss him."

Pearce Roberts, Jr. (MCV) a long-standing friend of the School and an Asheville dentist for more than forty years died on January 28, 1991. He was past president of the NCDS, the Buncombe County Dental Society, and the Dental Foundation of North Carolina.

Careers in Dentistry

The Careers in Dentistry program, held Saturday, February 2, was an overwhelming success. The planning committee took an excellent idea, expanded on the 1984 and 1987 programs, and produced an outstanding day for students from all programs at the School. A unique feature of the 1991 program was that it was combined with Parents Day and provided parents a first hand opportunity to learn about the career options available in dentistry. One hundred seventy-five students and ninety-five parents participated in the day's activities. Participants could choose among 36 sessions and 26 lunch and learn topics. In addition, each student received a specially prepared Careers in Dentistry manual. The manual described fourteen dental career areas and covered the gamut of options in dentistry.

Congratulations and appreciation go to the UNC Dental Parents for sponsoring the event, to Ms. Sharon Grayden, Program Coordinator, to Dr. Karen Bruggers, Chairperson of the Career Conference Committee, and to the committee members: Drs. Steve Bayne, Ken May, Chauncey Nelson, and Mary Pettiette, to Ms. Shannon Huennekens and Rebecca Scruggs, and to students Mike Berry and John McNeill '91, Keith Mann, Cheryl Mitchell, Angela Ruff, and Brett Visser '92, Frank Gupton and Geoff Sheen '93, and Jason Mohorn '94.

The 1991 Commencement

The Thirty-Eighth Honors Convocation of the School of Dentistry took place on Sunday, May 12, at 1:00 p.m. at Memorial Hall. A total of eight Dental Assisting candidates, 25 Dental Hygiene candidates, 68 Doctor of Dental Surgery candidates, six August, 1990 D.D.S. graduates, and nine Master of Science candidates were honored. Ninety-two of those honored were from North Carolina, 21 from other states, and three from other countries.

The program included a welcome from Dean John Stamm and remarks by Eric F. Strother, Senior Class President. Christopher C. Fordham, III, UNC Chancellor Emeritus, gave the convocation address.

The graduates' names were read by Ms. Joyce Jenzano, Director of Dental Auxiliary Programs, and Dr. Henry W. Fields, Jr., Assistant Dean for Academic Affairs. Placing the doctoral hoods on the D.D.S. candidates' shoulders were Dr. James C. Eagle, Jr. and Dr. Henry V. Murray. A reception for the graduates, their family and friends, and faculty and staff of the School was held on the Kermit F. Knudtson Patio at Brauer Hall following the event.

Campaign For Excellence

On October 11, 1991 the School of Dentistry announced a $6 million fund raising drive as part of the University's Bicentennial Campaign. The Campaign for Excellence is being led by the Dental Foundation, which has appointed a Campaign Steering Committee chaired by Dr. Jim Harrell, Sr. We are extremely grateful that Dr. Harrell and his committee have accepted the challenge to lead the campaign to a successful conclusion.

The Campaign provides a unique opportunity for us to command the future. Our School possesses a tremendous tradition and an outstanding track record. But time stands still for no institution, and we cannot enter the 21st century resting on past reputation.

Less than half of the Dental School's annual budget comes from State appropriations. Consequently, the School's future strength hinges on the initiatives targeted in our Campaign for Excellence. The initiatives focus on educating dental students in a new clinical teaching facility ($3M), on attracting and retaining outstanding faculty through endowed chairs ($1M), on providing merit and need-based scholarships as well as graduate fellowships ($.5M), and support for ongoing activities such as renovations, student research, and faculty enrichment programs ($1.5M). These are ambitious goals, but in the present and future economic climate, their attainment is critical to the continued leadership of North Carolina's only dental school.

The people of North Carolina as well as the School's friends and alumni have had the vision and generosity to establish a dental school of the first rank. With their ongoing support, the School has responded by serving the citizens of this State in a uniquely energetic fashion. Through its excellence in teaching, the School provides for high standard training and continuing education of the majority of the State's dental professionals. Through its outstanding research programs, the School has made significant discoveries that have improved oral health care and have brought distinction to the University and the State. The School has returned much to those who founded it and helped it along the way.

Now we face a new time, a new challenge. Today we teach students who will practice beyond 2025. We are obligated to them for excellent teaching and a scientifically sound and versatile knowledge base. Perhaps even more important to their future is the need to inculcate the desire to pursue the highest standards of public service and professional ethics. We must take up these responsibilities because the University and its School of Dentistry occupy a unique leadership role in North Carolina.

I know our students, faculty and staff are eager to meet the challenges. I call upon you to exhibit once more the vision and generosity that will allow us to achieve our aspirations for Dentistry at Carolina. Please become an enthusiastic partner in the School's Campaign for Excellence.

John W. Stamm, Dean

THE CAMPAIGN FOR EXCELLENCE

C hancellor Paul Hardin announced the largest fund-raising campaign in the history of the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill at an October 11 kickoff press conference. The Bicentennial Campaign for Carolina, named in honor of the University's upcoming 200th birthday, is a $320 million effort which includes support for every constituent school on campus. Since the beginning of the campaign's "quiet phase" last year, gifts and pledges of more than $155 million have been recorded. The Campaign is scheduled to end in 1995.

That same October day, a subcommittee of the Dental Foundation of North Carolina chaired by Dr. James A. Harrell, Sr. came together and agreed on a dollar goal of $6 million for the School of Dentistry's portion of the Campaign. The theme Campaign for Excellence was unanimously approved as were the goals of the Campaign: Clinical Teaching Facility - $3 million, Endowed Professorships - $1 million, Student Support - $.5 million, and Annual Giving - $1.5 million.

When Jim Harrell was asked by Dean John Stamm to serve as chairman of the Campaign, he insisted that the Dean take him on a tour of the School so that he could see and understand for himself why $6 million was needed. Was this money truly critical to the future of the Dental School? How would the people of North Carolina be better served once the Campaign was successfully completed? If he could be persuaded as to the need for this Campaign, Harrell reasoned, than maybe others could see it too.

Fortunately for the UNC School of Dentistry, Jim Harrell was convinced in a single morning of the absolute necessity of the Campaign and agreed that day to serve as its Chairman.

What are the goals of the Dental School's Campaign for Excellence and why are they so important?

Clinical Teaching Facility: $3 million

The most critical needs of the School are facilities. When patients first enter the UNC School of Dentistry, they step into an outdated screening clinic in the 1952 Old Dental Building. In the same building, clinical areas for radiology, endodontics and oral and maxillofacial surgery and vital support areas for central receiving, sterilization and distribution of instruments are similarly unsatisfactory by today's standards. Most significant of all, the entire teaching of clinical comprehensive dental care is carried out in the old main clinic built over forty years ago. As former North Carolina Dental Society

President Dr. Jack Sowter put it during a May 1991 meeting in Myrtle Beach, "while forty years doesn't seem so old, if I had to learn in 1954 in a clinic built in 1914, that puts a different perspective on things."

Furthermore, the School is in serious need of research space. Although the School's research programs have grown from $35,000 in 1963 to $5 million in 1991, not a square foot of laboratory space has been added since the dedication of the Dental Research Center in 1967. Laboratories that are jammed with people and equipment can't readily support a broad research agenda. Those same conditions make it difficult to attract top new faculty.

The School seeks $3 million in private funds toward a $13 million clinical teaching facility. With a healthy show of private support, the University can make a strong case for the balance in state funds, a pattern of state funding established in the 1980s. If that goal is met, the problem of research space will be solved relatively easily. Upon completion of the new clinical teaching facility, space vacated in the Old Dental Building, which is contiguous with the Dental Research Center, can be renovated for excellent research laboratories.

Endowed Professorships: $1 million

The School competes vigorously with other top dental schools for the finest faculty. UNC must be able to provide faculty with competitive salaries and the resources that will allow them to excel in teaching and research. Through named, endowed professorships, the School will be in a position to attract, recognize and retain outstanding teachers and researchers.

Student Support: $.5 million

More and more the high cost of attending the School is becoming a barrier to many promising students interested in the dental profession. For the average DDS student at Carolina, graduation brings a debt of $28,000. Post-doctoral graduate students face the prospect of financing three additional years of education. And students in the dental hygiene and assisting programs face similar financial burdens. Endowed scholarship and fellowship funds will enable the School to attract the best students, regardless of their ability to pay, to productive careers in dentistry.

Annual Giving: $1.5 million

The School continues to rely on private support for current operating activities. Annual giving helps to fund such needs as preclinical laboratory equipment, the student computer laboratory, classroom renovations, student research projects, faculty development, and visiting speaker expenses.

The School's annual giving effort during the Bicentennial also includes support of the Health Sciences Library, a library shared by all the health affairs schools on the UNC campus. Libraries have been hit hard over the last few years by the increasing costs of materials and decreasing levels of funding. Our students rely on the library's resources from the moment they enter dental school, and funds are needed to sustain and enhance this essential part of the teaching, learning and research enterprise.

Jim Harrell will have a great deal of help as he begins the task of raising $6 million. Dean John Stamm is giving it top priority as is Henry Zaytoun, President of the Dental Foundation. Help also comes from members of the University's Bicentennial Campaign Steering Committee — people like Hugh L. McColl, Jr., Chairman and CEO of NCNB Corporation, Paul Fulton, Jr., President of Sara Lee Corporation, and Earl N. "Phil" Phillips, Jr., President of First Factors Corporation and former Chairman of the UNC Board of Trustees. These individuals, along with Chancellor Paul Hardin, understand the importance of oral health care and appreciate the excellent reputation of the UNC School of Dentistry.

Harrell has also enlisted a campaign steering committee of leaders in dentistry and business. They come from across the state as well as from out-of-state. Some are alumni of the dental school; some are not. They represent the Dental Foundation, the Dental Alumni Association, and the North Carolina Dental Society. All have agreed to serve on a subcommittee of the Dental Foundation and to plan and carry out the School's Campaign for Excellence.

The Dental School's Steering Committee is planning the timetable for the Campaign. "We are focusing on leadership gifts from alumni, friends, corporations, and foundations for the next twelve months," said Harrell. "And we are also in the process of organizing a general solicitation of all dental professionals in North Carolina as well as out-of-state alumni. We expect that campaign will take place in early 1993."

There are a variety of ways people can support the Campaign. Gifts can be made over a five year period and can include cash or stocks, bonds, real estate, insurance, or gifts-in-kind. Irrevocable deferred gifts, which allow a donor to help the Dental School at some point in the future, are also encouraged. More specific information is available from the School's Director of Development, Wendy McCorkle.

Dean John Stamm is grateful for the long tradition of giving to the Dental School which the Dental Foundation is largely responsible for. And he is gratified by the early support of numerous individuals, corporations and foundations to the goals of this new campaign. The formal endorsement of the Campaign goals by the North Carolina Dental Society at their May 1991 meeting was especially appreciated.

Through the first quarter of fiscal year 1991/92, more than $1.9 million has been recorded in cash and pledges towards the School's $6 million goal. With the Campaign for Excellence scheduled to end in 1995, a great deal of optimism exists for achieving and even going beyond the $6 million goal. Dean Stamm believes there is real enthusiasm for the School and an appreciation for the challenges the future brings. "I think everyone understands that staying as good as we are just isn't good enough. We've got to be thinking ahead and moving forward. The traditions of our School demand that sort of attitude. And the people of North Carolina deserve nothing less." Clearly, there is good reason for the UNC School of Dentistry to seek $6 million for its future.

Chancellor Paul Hardin has a special message to all alumni and friends of the UNC School of Dentistry:

Chancellor Hardin announces campaign

I recognize the School of Dentistry's unique role in the health of our citizens as North Carolina's only dental school. As a patient, I am grateful for the excellent care I receive. All of us can be proud that it is one of the top dental schools in the world. I urge alumni and friends to contribute to the School's campaign. With your support, the UNC School of Dentistry will continue to lead in dental education, patient care, research, and service.

Dalton McMichael

McMichael Gift Leads Campaign

Dalton L. McMichael, Sr., a North Carolina businessman and friend of the School, has made a generous pledge to the School's new clinical teaching facility. McMichael co-founded and served as CEO of MacField, Inc. of Madison-Mayodan, NC. The company, one of the world's largest manufacturers of textured filament nylon and polyester yarns, merged recently with another textile company, Unifi.

Why would a businessman "outside of dentistry" contribute so generously to the School? "Because the School is so important to the health of the people of North Carolina," McMichael says.

McMichael became acquainted with the School while serving on the Health Affairs Committee of the UNC Board of Trustees in the early 1970s. "I learned a lot about the health affairs side of campus through that experience," he said. "I also got acquainted with Jim Bawden and appreciated what he was doing as dean of the dental school." Since that time McMichael has quietly supported several special efforts of the School. In appreciation, Dean Ben Barker named an honorary fellowship for him in 1983. Dr. Harry Bohannon, recently retired Research Professor in Dental Ecology, was the first Dalton McMichael Fellow.

"More people should learn about the School of Dentistry," McMichael said. "Chapel Hill has the only dental school in the state and it's among the top two or three in the country." McMichael said that he had been thinking about his gift for a long time. He continued, "John Stamm, Jim Bawden and others have kept me informed about the need for a new building. I want them to be successful during the Bicentennial campaign so that we can continue to be proud of the fine dental school in this state."

Frosty and Catharine Culp

Culps Make Leadership Gift

An alum giving early support to the Campaign is Dr. Harry R. "Frosty" Culp. He, his wife, Catharine Wilson Culp, and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert G. Culp, Jr., recently pledged $50,000. They designated the gift to construction of the new clinical teaching facility.

Why did Culp make the gift? "I realize that my education at Chapel Hill enabled me to prosper and to help people. I received an excellent education. This is my way of saying 'thank you'." Culp says that he has great respect for the School and believes it is entering a new era under Dean Stamm's leadership. As he puts it, "I've always been proud to say that I graduated from the UNC School of Dentistry. It's one of the top dental schools in the nation and I wish to see it maintain that status."

Culp also has a message for other graduates. "I've come to really appreciate the opportunities my degree from the dental school has provided. It just seemed natural to me to give back something in return for all the doors that have been opened. I hope other alumni will feel the same way."

Culp graduated from UNC in 1974 and from the School of Dentistry in 1980. While in dental school he served as president of the freshman and sophomore classes and as student representative to the admissions board during his junior and senior years. During his senior year he also worked part-time in research hematology. After graduation, Culp returned to his hometown of High Point, where he continues to practice general dentistry. He is a life member of the UNC Dental Alumni Association and a member of the School's Bicentennial Campaign Executive and Steering Committees. He and Catharine have three children, Royer, Wilson and Emily.

Bicentennial Facts

The Bicentennial Campaign for Carolina

On October 12, 1991 the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill announced the largest fund-raising campaign in its history: The Bicentennial Campaign for Carolina.

- The Bicentennial Campaign's goal: $320 million by the end of 1995.

- The campaign has already raised more than $155 million in gifts and pledges.

- The School of Dentistry has announced its portion of the University's Bicentennial Campaign.

- The School's goal: $6 million.

- The School's Campaign for Excellence will help fund a clinical teaching facility as well as professorships, student support and annual giving needs.

The Bicentennial Observance

- The University will soon celebrate its 200th anniversary as the first state university to open its doors.

- An eight-month Observance of the University's Bicentennial will take place from October 12, 1993 to May 15, 1994.

- The School of Dentistry will sponsor several special events during the Bicentennial Observance period.

An Interview with Dr. James A. Harrell, Sr.

Editor's Note. "There's only one person who can lead such a campaign; that's Jim Harrell." "I know just the person to lead the School's campaign: Jim Harrell." "Have you asked Jim Harrell?"

Dr. James A. Harrell, Sr.'s name came up so often that there didn't seem to be much question: Jim Harrell was the person to ask to lead the School's Campaign for Excellence. We did so and we are very happy that he accepted.

How does a person reach such a level of recognition? Why is he willing to take on another campaign? We interviewed him recently to discover some of the answers.

Matt Drake, Editor

Matt: Jim, why did you agree to chair this campaign?

Jim: After talking at length with Dean Stamm and touring the Dental School and the Dental Research building, I was overwhelmed with the specific need of a new clinical building for the School and the urgent need for more space for the Dental Research Center. Success in the other campaign areas is needed too. The endowed professorships, student scholarships, and annual funds will give the School the flexibility it needs to remain strong in the face of reduced federal grants and state cut-backs. This campaign will strengthen all the areas of the School and prepare it for leadership into the next century. I'm excited about taking part in such an important effort.

Matt: What will the School's Campaign for Excellence achieve?

Jim: Dentistry has changed so much in the last few years that it is imperative that we build a new clinical addition to our present school. This will assure the continuation of graduating the finest qualified dentists, resulting in constantly improving dental care for the public. We have the second largest Dental Research Center in the world. They have grants for research in many areas of dentistry as well as for AIDS, breathing problems, and others. Results from the research will continue to improve the health of our citizens.

Matt: You have watched the School since it opened in 1950. How has the School affected dental health care in North Carolina?

Jim: The School of Dentistry is a very vital part of the health service provided to the citizens of this state. Up until World War II we had an average of 150 students from North Carolina studying dentistry every year out-of-state, because we had no school. After World War II, we had seven students in 1947 and nine in 1948 studying dentistry. You see, other states had to take care of their own students, so they could not accept ours. It became imperative to build our own dental school. This institution has now prepared most of the dentists in North Carolina and many of the dental team members. It has also played an enormous part in the quality of dental service provided in the state. For example it has been a tremendous stimulus to treatment for children and to fluoridation throughout the state, which have produced a 37% reduction in dental caries in North Carolina.

Matt: Why should our readers give to the School's Campaign for Excellence?

Jim: Dental disease is the one disease that affects the largest percentage, 98%, of the American public. It is a vital necessity that our School continue to provide the finest quality dental education and to expand dental research. We must realize that the position each of us now occupies in oral health care was built upon the contributions of those who went before us. It is now our turn to provide for the future of others and for dental care. We must give generously to meet this great challenge for our School and for the citizens of our state.

Dr. James A. Harrell, Sr., received his DDS degree from the Medical College of Virginia and is in his 47th year of general practice in Elkin. A leader in organized dentistry and a long-time supporter of the UNC School of Dentistry, Jim has received the School's highest awards for service.

Focus on Students

North Carolina's Best Are In Entering DDS Class

Good news for recruitment efforts from the 1991 first year DDS class. From 1990 to 1991, the applications from North Carolina residents increased 42.5%. An increase (7.5%) also occurred in the out-of-state applications. In addition, the quality of the 1991 entering class, as measured by the average science grade point average (GPA) and the dental admissions test (DAT) scores, is the best since 1982. The average science GPA for the class is 3.1, and the average academic score for the DAT is 17.5.

Several factors have contributed to our recruiting success this year, but two should receive much of the credit. First, dental practitioners seem to be more positive about their profession. They are conveying this message to young people and encouraging them to consider a career in dentistry. Second, the overall commitment of the School of Dentistry over the past several years to increasing the quantity and quality of the North Carolina applicant pool is "paying off."

Success in 1991 does not mean that our recruitment efforts will continue without change. We will include successful activities from previous years and enhance them with new ideas. As always, we will rely on our alumni and friends to help us encourage bright young people to consider dentistry. Through a sustained cooperative effort, the quantity and quality of our NC applicants will continue to increase.

The School of Dentistry appreciates your efforts to help us build the profession of dentistry. If you know someone who is interested in dentistry and would like to visit the School, please contact Dr. Ken May in the Admissions office at (919) 966-4451.

Profiles of the Entering Classes

The first year DDS class (Class of '95) facts at-a-glance follow:

- The entering class consists of 73 students.
- North Carolina residents total 60; 13 others are from out-of-state.
- Women (22) total 30% of the class.
- Blacks (6), Asian Pacific Islanders (2) and Hispanics (1) make up 12% of the class.
- Students' ages range from 21 to 34, with 23 as the average.
- Seven students are children of dental parents, including four children of alumni.
- Counties sending the most students are: Wake (8), Mecklenburg (7), Guilford (6), Orange (5), Cabarrus (2), Durham (2), and Lee (2). One student each came from 28 other counties.
- The most popular undergraduate major, by far: Biology/Zoology (38).
- Many members of the class (29) received their undergraduate degrees from UNC-Chapel Hill. N.C. State (8), Duke (4), and 10 other North Carolina colleges and universities prepared other entering students.
- Undergraduate grade point average in science: 3.10, in non-science courses: 3.16.

The biographical sketches of the members of the entering DDS class present a variety of work experiences and interests. Dental assistant, waiter/waitress, lifeguard, laboratory work, and sales are mentioned several times. Unique work experiences include medic, Alaskan fishing boat crew member, computer software engineer, and high school biology teacher. Sports and music lead the list of hobbies and interests, with video games, cross-stitching, jetskiing, home brewing, beekeeping, history and philosophy of science, and historic houses as some of the unusual ones.

The Dental Assisting Class

consists of 16 students in the general program plus two specialty students. Durham and Orange Counties are home for eleven students. Five others come from neighboring counties, and two are from out-of-state. Two Black students are in the class. The DA students' ages range from 18 to 37.

The first-year Dental Hygiene class numbers 23. Included are one male Black student, two female Black students, and one female American Indian student. All the regular DH students are from North Carolina. Six post-certificate students are also enrolled this fall. Three are North Carolina residents and three are from out-of-state.

Second Generation Students

Four members of the entering DDS class are children of alumni. Lee Chandler Bass is the daughter of Dr. ('67) Robert E. and Mrs. Jane C. Bass of High Point. The sons are: Todd Andrew Greeson, son of Dr. ('69) Claude D. and Mrs. Linda C. Greeson of Burlington; Wilson O'Kelly Jewell, son of Dr. ('58) E. Smith and Mrs. Emma P. Jewell of Wilmington, and George Thomas Ward, Jr., son of Dr. ('64) George T. and Mrs. Judy Ward of Sandwich, MA.

Graduate Student Awards

James M. Boyle, III, Oral Maxillofacial Surgery (3rd year), received the Oral Maxillofacial Resident Scientific Presentation Award, sponsored by the Straumann Company, for his study "Torque and Pull-Out Analysis of Six Currently Available Self Tapping and Emergency Screws." The formal presentation was September 25, 1991 at the AAOMS meeting in Chicago and included a $1,000 award.

Marilyn E. Braddock, Prosthodontics (3rd year), received a National Service Award from NIDR in 1991 and a National Public Service Award from a consortium of doctors in Atlanta, GA. She is listed in Who's Who Among Rising Americans and Who's Who Among Black Professional Women.

John G. Collins, Oral Biology (1st year), received the $2,000 Thomas P. Hinman Scholar Award at the dental meeting in March, 1991. Also, he received the Dentist Scientist Award from the National Institute of Dental Research. This is a five-year award for $61,500. His mentor is Dr. Steve Offenbacher.

Jeffrey Dahm, AEGD (1st year), was inducted into Omicron Kappa Upsilon Dental Honor Society.

Photini Kamposiora, Prosthodontics (1st year), received the Tylman Research Grant from the American Academy of Fixed Prosthodontics. The award is for $1,500. She will present the results of her work to the Annual Meeting of the American Academy of Fixed Prosthodontics.

Karen E. Lanier, Periodontics (3rd year), received $600 for first place in the Southern Academy of Periodontists' Research Award competition. Her advisor is Dr. Roger Lundblad.

Benjamin Lowe, Orthodontics (2nd year), received the Babcock Fellow award from the School in August, 1991.

Ronald H. Nason, Jr., Periodontics (1st year), was elected to Omicron Kappa Upsilon in the Spring of 1991. He also received the Grover C. Hunter Award last Spring.

Soon-Eng Pang, visiting fellow in the Department of Prosthodontics, was awarded a $20,000 Health and Manpower Development Plan Fellowship from the Ministry of Health in the Singapore government. The twelve-month fellowship will provide her with advanced training in the periodontal/prosthodontic management of patients. She is working with Dr. David Felton, director of the graduate program in prosthodontics.

Photini Kamposiora and George Papavasiliou

George Papavasiliou, Prosthodontics (3rd year), will be presented the Granger-Pruden Research Award from the Northeastern Gnathological Society. The $2,500 award will be presented at the annual meeting of the Society.

Galen Schneider, Prosthodontics (1st year), received a Dentist Scientist Award, Departments of Prosthodontics and Cell Biology-Anatomy, from the University of North Carolina, July 1991-1996. He is also listed in the 1990-91 Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges.

Linda A. Simon, Orthodontics (2nd year), was awarded the Sapp Fellowship Award by the School in the Summer of 1991.

Students Travel to Mexico

Nine students from the School traveled to Mexico this summer and put their dental training to the test. The group, a mixture of rising second and third year students, spent almost a month learning about Mexican dentistry and culture. They divided their time between Mexico City and the Ninestros Piquesos Herminios Orphanage in Central Mexico.

The group had spent many months prior to the trip gathering supplies and raising the necessary $9,000. They all made the flight to Mexico, along with twelve suitcases full of donated dental supplies destined for the orphanage clinic.

Dr. Alfonso Rodríguez-Galven, an adjunct professor in Dental Ecology, hosted the students during their ten days in Mexico City. He arranged visits to public and private dental schools as well as to public health and hospital dental facilities. He also did double-duty as tour guide at the local sites.

The Ninestros Piquesos Herminios Orphanage in Central Mexico houses 800-1200 children ranging in age from infants to 18 years. Two dentists, husband and wife, voluntarily staff the clinic on a part-time basis. They were overjoyed to receive the much-needed supplies. The amalgam was especially welcome since they had already exhausted their supply. The students had planned to transport two donated dental operatories and an X-ray unit to the orphanage but had to abandon the idea because of transportation problems and Mexico's high import taxes.

Learning occurred on both sides of the border because of this project. The local dentists learned the techniques of placing sealants and composite resins, while the students gained valuable experience in pediatric dentistry.

The team consisted of Sondra Avant ('93), Scott Cashion ('94), Bryan Freeman ('94), Stan Hardesty ('93), Frank Iuorna ('94), Monica McLachlan ('94), Kim Pryzgodna ('93), Ron Robinson ('94), and Alicia Rodríguez ('94). They returned with a greater understanding of our Mexican neighbors and a healthier respect for McDonalds. Faculty advisor to the Mexico project groups is Dr. Ron Strauss, Professor of Dental Ecology.

Women Dental Students Go To Prison

This fall, members of the North Carolina student chapter of the American Association of Women Dentists have been providing monthly oral health education programs at the Correctional Facility for Women in Raleigh. Three students visit the prison each time. The session includes a slide presentation, oral hygiene demonstrations, and time for questions and answers. The students work with special groups, such as pregnant inmates and those who are HIV positive.

During the year the chapter sponsors a welcome dinner for the first year women and a featured speaker for all the School's students. They also purchase Christmas gifts for an under-privileged family through a community service program called Adopt-A-Family.

Need a babysitter when you visit Chapel Hill? As a special service to alumni and friends of the School, they will help you locate dental student babysitters. Interested parents should contact Cheryl Freeman 919-644-1559 or Sondra Avant 919-967-5792 to make arrangements.

Introducing a fiscal program that helps you get paid more than lip service.

Slow Medicaid and insurance payments can be the kiss of death to any practice. But the Premier Dental Management System can help. In addition to storing information for up to 2,000 insurance plans, our electronic claims transfer program expedites processing by eliminating delays by mail. And because claims information is stored on a special list, you can get aging and delinquent reports immediately. Our special software system permits rearranging of file data by any criteria, meaning you could ask for and receive at any given time a complete list of patients and insurance companies who owe money to the practice, tracking literally every dollar of produced income.

So find out how Premier Dental Systems can make your practice more perfect. Call us for more information.

High school interns with a teacher

Summer Research By High School Seniors

Five Triangle-area high school rising seniors spent the summer in the Minority High School Apprentice Program at the School of Dentistry. The program was sponsored by the School through a grant from the National Institutes of Health.

According to Dr. David McNair, director of counseling services at the School, "the apprentice program is designed to acquaint the students with several areas of dental research and to encourage them to pursue careers in dentistry." They were selected on the basis of academic excellence, extracurricular activities, community service, and interest in dentistry as a career.

The students worked in Dental Research Center laboratories under the guidance of faculty members and their laboratory staff members. The apprentices also attended basic science and dental anatomy lectures and laboratories sponsored by the Medical Education Development Program. At the conclusion of their apprenticeships the students presented their research findings to a seminar of dental school faculty, staff and guests.

The apprenticeship program was administered by Dr. McNair. Ms. Felecia Blount, a rising second year dental student, served as student coordinator.

Each program is directed by a faculty member in the appropriate department. If you wish more information, your initial call should go to Ms. Ann Fogleman in the Academic Affairs Office, 919-966-4565. She will answer your questions or refer you to the program director.

Alumni Help Plan School's Bicentennial Observance

UNC will celebrate its 200th anniversary from October 12, 1993 through May 15, 1994. The School of Dentistry has accepted the University's invitation to participate in the Observance.

Alumni helping the School plan its part in the Bicentennial Observance are: Brent Blaylock ('81), Nona Breeland ('87), Elizabeth Cordes ('91), Morris Griffin ('68), Murray Holland ('56), Carroll Kennedy ('59), John McNeill ('91), Lloyd Rothschild ('75), and Lowell Williams ('57).

According to Matt Drake, Director of Institutional Development and Chair of the Committee, "we will participate in three different ways: by planning one or more Observance activities unique to the dental school, by joining in such University-wide activities as a campus Open House, and by relating certain traditional School events (such as Dental Seminar Day) to the Observance."

The Observance Planning Committee consists of alumni, students, faculty, and staff. A report of their recommendations will go to the University by the end of the year.

Alumni Meet in Seattle

Seattle, the emerald city of the pacific northwest, provided the perfect setting for a get-together of alumni, friends of the School, and other dignitaries participating in the 132nd Annual Session of the ADA. The School of Dentistry reception was held Sunday evening, October 6, in the Westin Hotel. Guests were greeted by Dean John Stamm, his wife, Carol, and Ms. Sharon Grayden, Coordinator of Alumni and Special Events. Among the special guests were ADA President, Dr. Eugene Truono, his wife, Dolores, sixteenth district trustee, Dr. Jim Gaines and his wife, Nancy, and NCDS president, Dr. Kenneth Morgan.

Several alumni and a third year DDS student participated on the ADA program. Dr. Irvin A. Roseman ('67) presented two sessions on clinical endodontics as part of the scientific program. Table clinics were given by Mr. Michael McCracken, ('93), Dr. R. Todd Watkins ('90) and Dr. Steven B. Andreus ('88). Dr. Andreus won first place in the Masters competition for Student Clinicians-ADA (SCADA). This is a competition open to practitioners who previously presented as students.

Current Research to be Presented

Clinical and basic science research currently underway by dental school faculty and students will be presented at the School's Research in Review Day on Wednesday, February 26, 1992. Poster sessions and brief illustrated talks take place in the morning. The afternoon will feature a guest speaker, along with presentation of the Class of '58 Outstanding Clinical Research Award to a UNC faculty member. An informal lunch will be available.

Dental Parents

Plans are well underway for the 1991-92 activities of the UNC Dental Parents. Under the effective leadership of President Ken Samuelson, the group met twice and set their goals for the year. They have established the priorities for this year's fundraiser, set plans in motion for the January phonothon, and outlined the preliminary program for the spring Parents Day. After a tour of the student lounge during the June meeting, new carpeting jumped to the top of the project list. Other projects the Parents plan to support this year include the sponsorship of two nationally recognized practice management consultants who will speak to the students, a summer research fellowship, two burnout ovens for the sophomore lab, and reflectors to enhance the lighting in the Junior/Senior lab.

To realize their goals, a team of ten to twelve parent volunteers will call other dental parents to ask for their support. Parents may contribute by mail or by pledge when they are contacted during the January 24-25 phonothon. Last year, the generous gifts of one hundred and twenty-five UNC dental parents netted over $8,000.00. This money enabled the Parents to sponsor the February Careers in Dentistry program, one of the major School events of the year. These special gifts are more important than ever as we try to give the students some "extras" in the educational experience.

Mark your calendars! The Annual Parents Day program is scheduled for Friday, April 3, 1992. A variety of presentations will be offered covering topics such as financing dental education, stress in dental school, and what's new in dentistry. A luncheon, sponsored in part by Healthco International, will again be part of Parents Day. It's not too late to join the UNC Dental Parents Committee. All parents are welcomed to join. If you are interested, call Parents President, Ken Samuelson at 919-623-7787.

Fall Football Day

Bo Forrest ('76) and daughter, Mary, enjoy the barbecue

Blue and white adorned the patio and lawn of Brauer Hall when 140 alumni, family and friends of the School gathered for the annual Fall Football Day barbecue on October 12. It was a perfect pre-game warm-up, from the magnificent Carolina blue sky to the good food and lively conversation. Dental Alumni Association president Dr. Brock Wellons and Dean John Stamm welcomed the guests. Pom poms, peanuts and game programs were passed out to everyone before they left for the game. The day was capped off with a Carolina victory over Wake Forest.

Dr. Ted Roberson Recognized

Dr. Ted Roberson, professor in Operative Dentistry, was recently recognized by the department for his years of service and outstanding contribution to the School and to the Department of Operative Dentistry.

Over the years Ted has worn many hats in the School. He began his academic career in 1968 as an instructor in Operative Dentistry and was promoted to assistant professor in 1970. From 1975 through 1981 he served concurrently as director of student affairs and director of admissions. During this time he was also promoted to associate professor, became the acting chair of Operative Dentistry, and, in 1981 was appointed the Chair of Operative Dentistry. Ted served as the department chair for seven years before resigning in 1988 to devote his time to teaching and research. He is currently the director of the course in conservative operative dentistry and the co-director of the casting course. A portrait of Dr. Roberson was presented to the School and will hang in the third floor lobby next to the portraits of the two former chairs of Operative Dentistry, Drs. Roger and Clifford Sturdevant.

Dental Hygiene Alumni Association

The Dental Hygiene Alumni Association held its Fall Board meeting on Saturday, September 14, prior to the UNC-Cincinnati game. The Board outlined plans for their 1991-92 activities. The 1992 DHAA membership drive, scheduled to begin in January, is a high priority. The Board will continue to work on student recruitment with the Dental Hygiene program.

Career Night, an annual event hosted by the Dental Hygiene Alumni Association for the dental hygiene students, will be held in November. Representatives from a number of dental hygiene career choices will share their experiences with the students. The DHAA will give the students exam "goodie bags" to help them prepare for finals when they return from the Thanksgiving holiday. All dental hygiene alums should mark their calendars for Alumni Day, April 4, 1992. Plans are well underway for an excellent continuing education program. Watch for a flyer announcing this special program and watch for your membership notice too!

DATE Alumni Association

The DATE Alumni Association reminds dental hygiene professionals that the University of North Carolina-Chapel Hill offers a Master of Science degree in Dental Auxiliary Teacher Education. A number of career options are available to dental hygienists through this advanced education program. Curricula are designed to meet individual professional goals in the areas of teaching, research, administration, and management. Employment opportunities are available in the community while completing requirements. An assistant stipend is also offered to all graduate students. For more information, please call or write Rebecca R. Scruggs, CB#7450, FOB, School of Dentistry, Chapel Hill, NC 27599-7450, (919) 966-2800.

Alumni Weekend 1992

April 3 & 4 are the dates to remember for the 1992 Alumni Weekend! Once again the Dental Alumni Association will host class reunions, continuing education, and other activities for alumni, family and friends of the School. The weekend begins Friday morning with a tour of the Ackland Art Museum and a trolley tour of downtown Chapel Hill. The Parents Day program and luncheon will also be held on Friday morning.

Friday afternoon will feature the Eighth Annual Shankle Lecture, with support from the Tar Heel Endodontic Association and the Robert J. Shankle Lecture Fund in the Dental Foundation. Dr. Gerard J. Chiche will speak on "How To Improve Esthetics in Anterior Fixed Prosthodontics." The program will be held at the Friday Continuing Education Center from 1:00 to 4:30 p.m. On Saturday morning, the Dental Alumni Association will hold its annual meeting and election of officers just prior to the Roy B. Harrell Symposium. The Harrell Symposium, supported by the Roy B. Harrell Fund in the Dental Foundation, focuses on the practical application of clinical research. It will feature Dr. Harald Heymann and other faculty. These activities will be held in Brauer Hall.

Add the Annual School of Dentistry Family Picnic as a must do for Saturday afternoon. There will be barbecue, games for children and adults, and fun for everyone. Saturday evening, alumni and guests are invited to the All Alumni Reception at the Sheraton Imperial at RTP. Join us for this special time of reminiscing and reconnecting with classmates, colleagues and faculty. The reception will precede the five year class reunion dinners for the Classes of 1957, 1962, 1967, 1972, 1977, 1982, and 1987. Details and reunion reservation forms will be mailed in January. Mark your calendar today for this spectacular alumni weekend.

The Most Years of Service

Bertha Lee Fuller, Supply Technician II in Sterilization, will complete her 25th year of service to the State this school year. Twenty-four years were spent in the NC

Bertha Lee Fuller

Memorial Hospital at UNC. She worked 10 years in the Dietary Department and then, after a few years in industry, returned to the hospital. In 1976 Bertha began 14 years of service in sterilization, starting in Central Service Sterilization and advancing to Team Leader in Operating Room Sterilization. She transferred to the School's Sterilization Service in February, 1991.

According to Ms. Faye Talley, Supervisor in Central Sterilization, "Bertha is an extremely valuable asset. While the work is tedious and sometimes unpleasant, she is always willing to do more than her share, enabling the unit to meet the demands of patient care in the clinical areas. Bertha is friendly and helpful to everyone. I feel fortunate to have her on my staff."

"I really enjoy working at the School," Bertha said in a recent interview. "I enjoy the people I work with as well as the change from rotating weekend shifts to a regular work week."

Bertha has seen great changes in sterilization over the years, from washing every instrument by hand to using technologically advanced sterilizing equipment. The other great change she noted, in working at UNC for 25 years, was the increasing problem of finding a place to park!

Bob Garmon

Robert B. Garmon, Dental Technician II in Orthodontics, completes his 30th year with the School on May 14, 1992. Bob began his work in Supply and Maintenance. After two years, he transferred to Orthodontics as a technician.

Bob learned his trade by "looking over the orthodontist's shoulder." No schools offered dental technician courses in the early '60s, so he learned on-the-job. Much of his early work involved fabricating indirect bands by hand. "Pre-formed bands were just starting to be used," Bob observed. "Now we've mostly phased out bands and bond teeth." His current work consists of making a wide variety of retainers and active appliances.

Dr. Bill Proffit, Chair of Orthodontics, said, "Bob Garmon can make anything. He was a very good orthodontic technician when I first came here, but he has become a better one through the years, taking an interest in new things as they have come along and being quite creative in the design and fabrication of appliances."

If Bob ever retires he might spend more time with one of his hobbies, helping instruct at race and sports car driving schools. He enjoys his work and his contact with students and faculty too much, though, to retire fully anytime soon.

Doris Ray

Doris S. Ray, Department Manager in Orthodontics, will complete her 30th year with the University in the Spring of '92. She began as a stenographer. "There were five or six of us in the whole UNC personnel department when I first started," Doris recalled. She became a secretary and then advanced to the benefits office within the department. In 1968 Doris transferred to the Child Development Institute as administrative secretary to the director. After ten years, she moved to her current position in the School.

"I've seen so many changes," Doris said, "new buildings, computers, FAX machines...it's really amazing what has gone on."

Doris now handles all the Orthodontic Department accounting, works with the faculty, residents, and the secretarial staff. "I have enjoyed being here, working with Dr. Proffit, seeing the students come and go. This position has given me a lot of contact with people in the School as well as on campus, which I also enjoy."

Bill Proffit noted that Doris and Bob have been key people in the success of the department. He said, "Doris has been a marvelous interface between the activities of the department and the University administrative bureaucracy. In many ways, her job has been to keep me out of trouble, and she has been very good at that."

Voigt Retires

Jack D. Voigt, Director of Dental Support Services, retired July 31, 1991 after 25 years of work at the School. Prior to coming to the School, he had retired from a career in the Navy. Jack began in 1966 as the dental equipment repair technician for the Dental Research Center. He advanced to the position of Dental Research Laboratory Manager and, in 1984, became Director of Dental Support Services. Also in 1984, Jack was selected as a runner-up for the prestigious Governor's Award (given to outstanding state employees).

Among the special projects which Jack remembers with pride are erecting a very effective but simple hydraulic sledge microtome in a chest freezer for slicing frozen tissue samples. The samples were used in testing drug penetration in small animals. Another project involved devising two constant body temperature chambers for immersion of teeth with compound fillings into a saliva-like liquid. These were used to test for leakage. A third special assignment was his formation of the Dental Support Services in 1984.

Jack's contributions to the School were recognized with a retirement party at the School on July 31. He was greeted by many well-wishers and given a band saw as an appreciation gift. In retirement, Jack and his wife plan to travel in the U.S. He will continue to pursue his love of refinishing antique furniture.

Faculty Updates

Stephen C. Bayne, Associate Professor, Section Head of Biomaterials, Department of Operative Dentistry, was elected Chair-of-the-Faculty at the School of Dentistry in May, 1991 and awarded the Teaching Excellence Award by the 1990-1991 Freshman Class. He was appointed Chairman of the ADA Task Force on Posterior Composites in June, 1991 and in July, 1991 appointed to the ADA Task Force on Dental Amalgam.

Doryck L. Boyd, Research Assistant Professor, Department of Diagnostic Sciences, is working on a National Institutes of Health and Human Development Grant Award for "Effects of Oral and Enteric Endotoxins on Pregnancy." He joined the faculty this year from Emory University.

Karen J. Bruggers, Clinical Assistant Professor, Prosthodontics, will resign the last of December, 1991 to enter private practice in Cary.

Susan J. Daniel, Assistant Professor, Dental Ecology, resigned July 14, 1991 to accept the position of Director of the Dental Hygiene Program at the University of Mississippi. She had been at the School for almost seven years.

Diane C. Dilley, Associate Professor, Pediatric Dentistry, was elected to a three-year term to the Board of Directors College of Diplomates of the American Board of Pediatric Dentistry at their annual meeting in San Antonio in May, 1991. At this meeting she was elected also to a three-year term on the Board of Trustees for the Academy of Pediatric Dentistry Foundation.

Henry W. Fields, Jr., Professor of Pediatric Dentistry/Orthodontics and Assistant Dean for Academic Affairs, resigned August 1, 1991 to accept the position of Dean, School of Dentistry at The Ohio State University. Dr. Fields began teaching at the School in 1977. His contributions to all the mission areas of the School were recognized at several "going-away" gatherings.

Robert P. Kusy, Professor, Orthodontics/Research, received over $42,000 for a room renovation in the Dental Research Center to construct a Class 100 Clean Room. The facility will be used to synthesize, fabricate and evaluate biosensors as part of the Duke-North Carolina Engineering Research Center. Dr. Kusy is a co-investigator in this multi-million dollar, multi-disciplinary project that involves Duke, UNC and NCSU.

Ralph H. Leonard, Jr., Clinical Assistant Professor, Dental Ecology, was awarded Fellowship into the Academy of General Dentistry (FAGD) at the annual meeting in Orlando in July, 1991.

John B. Ludlow, Assistant Professor, Diagnostic Sciences, is Chair-Elect and Program Chairman of the American Association of Dental Schools Oral and Maxillofacial Radiology Section for 1991-1992.

Roger L. Lundblad, Professor, Dental Research, resigned June 30, 1991 to become Director of Research Development with Baxter Hyland, an international pharmaceutical firm.

Sally M. Mauriello, Associate Professor, Dental Hygiene, was appointed as dental hygiene consultant to the ADA Commission on Dental Accreditation starting October, 1991.

Kenneth N. May, Jr., Director of Admissions and Student Affairs, was appointed Acting Assistant Dean for Academic Affairs for the period August, 1991 to July, 1992.

Walter McFall

Walter T. McFall, Professor, Periodontics, was presented the Fellowship Award by the American Academy of Periodontology at the annual meeting, October 2, 1991 in Vancouver, B.C. The award recognized Walter's 30 years of service to the Academy in a wide range of national offices and committees.

Theodore R. Oldenburg,

Assistant Dean, traveled recently to Kyoto, Japan where he was the guest lecturer at the annual meeting of the International Association of Dentistry for Children. Following this meeting, he visited the Hong Kong School of Dentistry.

Michael W. Roberts, Associate Professor, was awarded tenure in the Department of Pediatric Dentistry. He was inducted into the American College of Dentists at their recent annual convocation in Seattle.

Renate E. Soltmann, Clinical Assistant Professor, Orthodontics, resigned August 15, 1991 to enter private practice. She will serve as a part-time faculty member.

Ronald P. Strauss, Professor, Dental Ecology, is the Co-Chair of the Piedmont HIV Health Care Consortium. The consortium recently received an $83,000 grant to help respond to an urgent need to provide services such as home health care, respite care, and other health and dental services to HIV infected people in Chatham, Durham, Granville, Lee, Orange, Person, and Vance counties. The overall goal of the consortium is to plan, develop and deliver comprehensive outpatient health and support services to all people infected with HIV in the seven-county area.

Myron R. Tucker, Associate Professor, Oral and Maxillofacial Surgery, resigned August 31, 1991 to enter private practice in Charlotte. He will serve as a part-time faculty member. He joined the School's faculty in 1982.

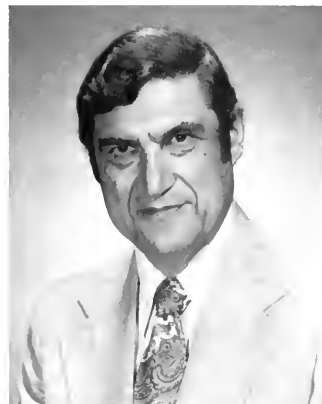

Kitty Tulloch

Kitty Tulloch, Associate Professor, Orthodontics, was selected as an international winner by the Society for Technology Assessment, for her paper on the effectiveness of routine extraction of third molars. She traveled to Helsinki this summer to receive the honor and $5,000 award that accompanies it.

Sharon P. Turner, Director, Dental Faculty Practice, and Director, Patient Admissions and Emergency Services, became a Diplomate of the American Board of Pain Management in August, 1991.

RETIREMENT

Marvin J. Block, Associate Professor, Dental Ecology and School of Public Health, retired August 31, 1991. Dr. Block began teaching at the dental school in the summer of 1972. Courses on health care systems and on geriatric dentistry, directorship of the School's extramural programs

Marvin Block

(student rotations), liaison to AHECs, and leadership in improving oral health care for the aged were among his many activities. He is a Fellow, American College of Dentists and American Society of Geriatric Dentistry, for which he served two terms as president. His research interests include the effect of dental care on the quality of life of older adults and a longitudinal study of student expectations in dental school.

Dr. Block continues on a part-time basis this academic year to coordinate the student rotation program. He looks forward to more volunteer work with such groups as the Triangle J. Council of Governments and to travels with his wife, Shirley.

In Dr. Block's honor, the Dental Ecology department renamed its Community Dentistry Student Award. Presented annually at the Spurgeon Banquet, the award "recognizes seniors who have shown unusual humanitarian interest and dedication to planning and/or providing oral health care services to various segments of the population." The award's new title is: The Marvin J. Block Community Dentistry Achievement Award.

Contributions to create an endowment for the award are welcome. Make checks payable to the Marvin J. Block Award and mail to Dr. James D. Beck, Department of Dental Ecology.

Your invitation to the HINMAN RECEPTION March 22, 1992

Martha Ann Keels - received her Ph.D. in Epidemiology in May. She is the Dental Director at the Lenox Baker Childrens Hospital in Durham. Her investigation of the relationship to maternal cigarette smoking during pregnancy in the etiology of cleft lip with or without cleft palate was the third place winner in the American Association of Pediatric Dentists' Basic Science Research Award Competition.

1984

Jane R. Holt - gave birth to twins, Meredith Jane and Richard Robinson, on April 15, 1991 while husband, Vance, served with the National Guard in Saudi Arabia. Her plans included returning to work by early this fall.

1985

John W. Hooker - established partnership with Dr. Clyde C. Minges (USC - Charleston '86) in May, 1990. They opened a new practice in Scotland Neck, NC in October, 1990 and have an existing practice in Rocky Mount. June 1, 1991 was his wedding day.

1986

Lynette M. McDonald - has a new daughter, Olivia Maxwell, born December 15, 1990.

Scott R. Rehm - as of July 1, 1991 is working with Drs. Schlarger and Miller in Greensboro. The practice is limited to oral and maxillofacial surgery.

1987

Sharon E. Nicholson - has been named the Dental Director at the Cumberland County Health Department in Fayetteville, NC. She recently completed a report entitled, "The Comparative Effectiveness of Fluoridated Water and Fluoride Tablets in Reducing Dental Decay in Kindergartners and First Graders."

1991

Mark J. Andrews - has associated with the practice of Alan Stafford, Concord, NC.

Kathy Boyd - graduate student in Endodontics, is currently on the North Carolina Dental Society Recruitment and Retention Task Group. Each of you 1991 grads who has located in NC, please send her your business address.

Marina C. Bonaventura - is "happily slaving away" at her GPR at St. Mary's Hospital in Brooklyn.

David B. Malin - took the Northeast Regional Boards this summer and has plans to practice in New York.

Daniel K. Price - is a resident in endodontics at LSU and welcomes any of his classmates for Mardi Gras '92!

Jeff L. Rumley - is engaged to Anne Stuart Davis of Raleigh and plans to marry in May, 1991. He plans to stay by the Pamlico River to ski and fish. Anita Sawhney - is currently a resident in the AGD program at the University of Florida-Jacksonville. She "is learning a lot and is enjoying living in the Sunshine State (20 minutes from the beach)." Anita spent the month of August on an oral surgery rotation at the University Medical Center and will spend the rest of the year at the University Dental Clinic doing general dentistry. She invites her classmates to come and visit!

Ted A. Wassel - married May 18, 1991 to Judy Robertson (DATE '90). He is an oral/maxillofacial surgery resident at Los Angeles County/University of Southern California Medical Center.

In Memory

John Harvey Spell ('71) - died on June 29, 1991 after a long illness.

Why We Give

“As a Carolina couple, we share a special bond with the UNC Dental School.

The School has enabled us to enter rewarding professions, and we both feel we help our patients by providing the best possible care. When we attended Carolina's dental school we knew it was good; in fact, it was rated #1 in the nation. However, it was not until we were out on our own that we realized how excellent our education was.

We are grateful for the technical skills and professional ethics we acquired from the Carolina dental school. We want to see our professions maintain excellent standards and believe that supporting the School of Dentistry, the dental hygiene department, and the orthodontics department, is one way to make this happen.

Finally, we're very proud of the Carolina tradition and thankful for the outstanding education we and so many other members of our extended families received. If our two children should ever decide to attend the UNC School of Dentistry, we would like to make sure that the School will be as fine a school for them as it was for us.”

Gifts and Contributors Increase Last Year

A 44% increase over last fiscal year in total cash contributions and a 17% increase in the number of contributors highlight the great news about support for the School. A total of 1,300 donors gave $814,271 during the School's July 1, 1990 to June 30, 1991 fiscal year (See the Honor Roll for contributors' names.)

"We are really excited about last year's results," said Wendy McCorkle, Director of Development. "And although we're certainly concerned about the bottom line, I can't stress enough how highly we value the fact that people give at any level. I'm not sure what it is that makes a non-donor suddenly decide to give. But whatever it is, we are very grateful when that happens and hope that we'll see even more first-time donors in the future."

Contribute Before End of '91

Henry Zaytoun

"I look forward to reading your name in next year's Honor Roll," says Dr. Henry S. Zaytoun, Sr., President of the Dental Foundation. "A gift now will ensure your place in next Fall's NCDR listing."

Dr. Zaytoun observes that dentists throughout North Carolina are directly affected by the activities of the School. He says, "There is no way we can escape it; therefore, it is in our own self-interest to do whatever we can to assure that we have the finest School in the world." He points out that annual fund gifts from alumni and friends are very important to the School.

As President of the Foundation, Zaytoun has visited the School often. "Everyone should visit," he urges. "You'll see firsthand the wonderful work in the departments and you'll feel a justifiable pride in your chosen profession."

As alumni plan their contributions for the 1991 year ending, Zaytoun urges assigning top priority to the School. "This is one time," he says, "you are placing your funds where you will gain direct and personal benefits." Zaytoun also hopes that every graduate's name will eventually appear in the Honor Roll.

"Our gifts to the School give undeniable evidence that we, as a profession, are deeply committed to the good health and well being of our fellow citizens."

To contribute, make your check out to the UNC School of Dentistry/Dental Foundation and mail to Ms. Wendy McCorkle, UNC School of Dentistry, CB# 7450, Room 104, Brauer Hall, Chapel Hill, NC 27599-7450. Gifts may be restricted to departments or given without restrictions, allowing the Dean to use the funds where he feels they are needed the most. If you are called in the UNC Phonathon, be sure to direct some or all of your gift to the School.
